PREFACE.

In publishing this "History and Genealogy of the Gurley Family," the author has attempted to gather together all the records of those who made an attempt to write and publish a work of this kind, and embody them in one book, also to search all town, church, and historical records, where anything was to be found relating to the Gurley name.

In writing a work of this kind it requires a great deal of patience and perseverance to ever make such a work a success, as several made the attempt, but gave it up and died without ever completing it. No one need ever think of writing a history and genealogy of their name, and think of doing or carrying on any other business at the same time, and whoever does will fail of ever making much progress with the work, and will soon give it up and leave it for some one else to do.

The author of this book has had great pleasure in finding so many Gurleys who have lived an honorable and religious life; they have filled many high and important offices, and are doing the same to-day with honor and credit, although they are not seekers of office, but prefer to live an honest, humble life in quietude and peace.

Part First contains a very interesting account of our first ancestor of which the author of this history has been able to find any record of is Ingelram de Gurley, who accompanied "William the Lion" from Normandy, France, to Scotland, in the year 1174, and for his sage counsels and good advice King William gave him a tract of land in Kin-craig, in Fifeshire, which, I believe, is possessed by the name to this day.

Part Second contains the history and genealogy of William Gurley, who was born in Inverness, Scotland, in the year 1665, and came to this country at the age of fourteen years, with Rev. Solomon Stoddard, to Northampton, Mass.

Part Third contains the history and genealogy of a William Gurley, who was born in the city of Wexford, Ireland, March 12, 1757, and was a descendant of James Gurley of Scotland.

Part Fourth contains the history and genealogy of Capt. Benjamin Gurley of Marblehead, Boston, Mass.

Part Fifth contains the history and genealogy of Rev. Joseph Gurley and Rev. John Gurley, two brothers (Episcopal clergymen), who settled in Virginia about 1760.

PREFATORY NOTE.

These "Memorials of the Scottish House of Gourlay" I have been enabled to produce, consequent on the cost of research having been defrayed by an honored member of the sept. The inquiry has been conducted amply, and it is to be hoped that the result will prove interesting not only to the members of the family, but also to those concerned in genealogical studies.

SCOTTISH HOUSE OF GOURLAY.

FAMILIES IN THE SOUTHERN COUNTIES.

During the sixteenth century the family of Gourlay held the lands of Sutton Grange in Yorkshire; they also had possessions in Cumberland.

William Gourlay of Sutton Grange, who was living about 1588, is described as a valiant captain in sundry martial services both at home and abroad.¹

During the twelfth century the family effected a settlement in Scotland. Ingelram de Gurley is described as having accompanied William the Lion when that king, in 1174, returned from his captivity in England.

From King William he received lands in Lothian and Clydesdale.² He had a son Hugh, who, in 1180, is a witness to a grant by Ingelram de Baliol to the Abbey of Arbroath.³ Hugh de Gurley possessed lands in the Lothians, also in Fife.⁴

Ingelram de Gurley witnessed various charters during the reign of Alexander II. (1214-1249.)

He is one of four witnesses to a charter by which Sybald, son of Walter, grants to the monks of Cupar certain rents of the Mill of Lundyn; the charter is undated, but is in the register followed by another dated in 1220.⁵

As "Ingeram de Gurle" he is witness to a charter by which Alan, constable of Lammermoor, grants to the church of Melrose a right of pasture.⁶

In 1245 Ingelram de Gurley witnesses a grant by Hew of Malhewe to Thomas de Ross of the lands of Ross of Milnertor, Hallingshaw, and Bathstruth in Angus.¹

Among those who, in 1296, did homage to Edward I were Matthew de Gurle, whose locality is not given; Roger Gourlay and William de Gourlay, of the county of Edinburgh; William de Gourlay of Balgally in Forfarshire; and Adam de Gourlay, of the county of Roxburgh.² On the 2d January, 1303-4, Adam de Gourlay, the homager, also Alan de Gourlay, were members of a jury appointed by Edward I to determine as to the succession to Sir Thomas de Chartres, who owned lands in the barony of Wilton, and had died in the year preceding at enmity with the king.³

In a mandate, dated 2d September, 1296, whereby lands and goods are restored to certain ecclesiastical persons, is named Patrick of Gurleghe, parson of the church of Loghorward, in the shire of Edinburgh.⁴

On the 23d December, 1292, Edward I, as overlord of the Kingdom of Scotland, intimated to William de Soulis, envoy from Scotland, his remission to William de Lamberton of a fine of ten merks, in which he was amerced by an assize, at the instance of Hugh de Gurley, in reference to a tenement in Linton.⁵ Hugh de Gurley was, on the 24th May, 1297, invited by Edward I, along with the young Earl of Carrick, afterwards King Robert I, and James the Steward of Scotland, and many others, to accompany him in his proposed expedition to Flanders.⁶ In the account rendered by Robert Peebles, Chamberlain of Scotland, in 1328, there is included a payment of one hundred shillings to Hugh de Gurley, by the king's mandate, for a certain old debt.⁷

On the 24th July, 1314, Edward II granted at York, under his own Privy Seal, protections and safe conducts to John de Gourlay and Symon de Gourlay, who were about to proceed to France, along with William de Umfraville, in quest of money for the ransom of Sir Ingelram de Umfraville, a prisoner with the Scotts.¹

Sir Ingelram was probably made captive at the battle of Bannockburn.

On the 30th March, 1359, Patrick Gourlay, bailie of Haddington, rendered to the Chamberlain at Dundee his account for that burgh.²

On the 26th October, 1365, "John Gourlay, merchant of Scotland," received permission to enter England with four companions; and at the same date William Gourlay, "merchant of Scotland," with four companions, had a similar license.³

In August, 1534, Mr. Norman Gourlay, apparently a native of the Lothians, was, along with David Stratoun, of the house of Lauriston, charged with heresy in the Abbey Church of Holyrood. At the trial, James V, then in his twenty-second year, was present, clothed in red.

Condemned to perish at the stake, the prisoners were, on the 27th August, borne to Greenside Well, and there burned. The spot of execution was selected so that the flames might be witnessed by and strike terror among the people of Fifeshire.

Norman Gourlay had denied the existence of purgatory, and affirmed that the Pope was Antichrist.⁴

On the site of Melbourne Place, at Edinburgh, stood a large mansion, known as Robert Gourlay's house, and having over the principal entrance the legend: "O Lord in the is al my traist, 1569." Robert Gourlay, the original owner, was a messenger-at-arms connected with Holyrood Abbey, an office bestowed upon him by the commendator, Adam Bothwell, Bishop of Orkney. An elder of the church, he was, in May, 1574, ordained to profess his repentance in St. Giles' Church, "for transporting wheat out of the countrie."⁵ When, in 1581, about to suffer death, the Regent Morton was for two days detained in Robert Gourlay's house under a strong guard;⁶ and there ensued those remarkable conferences between him and certain ministers, in which, while protesting his innocence of Darnley's murder, he admitted his foreknowledge of it.

John, the eldest son of Robert Gourlay, erected a house at the foot of the alley which conducted to his father's mansion, and in this structure was the Bank of Scotland, accommodated from its establishment in 1695 till the year 1805.

On the 8th August, 1588, David Gourlay, described as a son of Robert Gourlay, merchant-burgess of Edinburgh, entered into a contract of marriage with Marion, daughter of Robert Primrose, chirurgion-burgess of Edinburgh. To this contract are named as approvers, on the part of David, his father and mother, Robert Gourlay and Helen Cuik, also his brother John. And he becomes bound to infest his future wife in an annual rent of £80 out of the lands of Elyrk Myrick, in Balnagowan, Wigtonshire.¹

On the 2d December, 1627, David Gourlay, son of the deceased David Gourlay, merchant-burgess of Edinburgh, granted an obligation to Allan Lockhart, brother-german to the laird of Cleghorn, for the sum of £1,000.²

At Linlithgow, on the 17th May, 1606, Gilbert Gourlay, in Redhench, entered into a contract for the marriage of Jean Gourlay, daughter of his late brother, Michael Gourlay, with Alexander Glen, son of the late John Glen of Inneraven, in Fife.

A witness to the contract is Patrick Gourlay, portioner of Redheuch.³

James Gourlay, portioner of Dalkeith, granted, in October, 1638, an obligation to Mr. John Oswald, minister at Pencaitland, for 100 merks.⁴

John Gourlay of Rowlwood, in Roxburghshire, is named upon an inquest, expedé on the 15th February, 1497-8.⁵ At Jedburgh, on the 20th June, 1640, John Gourlay of Rowlwood engaged in a contract with William Turnbull, in Hassendenebank, as to the payment of an annual rent out of his lands of Rowlwood.⁶

FAMILIES IN FIFESHIRE.

Gourlay of Kincaig.

Hugh de Gourlay, grandson of Ingelram de Gurley, the original settler in Scotland, held lands in the Lothians, and in Fifeshire.¹ Dying early in the reign of Alexander II, he was in his lands succeeded by his son Hugh. This gentleman made a donation to the Monastery of Newbottle. In the charter or gift, he is designed "Hugo de Gourlay, filius Hugonis."² In 1272 he is witness to a confirmation by Bishop William Wishart of St. Andrews of the churches of Innerwyc and Lygerwod.³ He died early in the reign of Alexander III, leaving two sons, William and Hugh.

Hugh de Gourlay, the second son, became steward to the Earl of Dunbar. As witness to a donation to the monks of Coldingham in 1261, he is designed "Hugh de Gourlay, senescallus comitis de Dunbar."⁴ William de Gourlay, elder son of Hugh, succeeded to the family estates. He is named in a donation to the Monastery of Newbottle. He died prior to 1290, leaving a son William.

William acquired lands in different localities. To the Monastery of Newbottle he granted certain lands lying near Arthur's Oon, in the county of Stirling. In the charter which is dated 2d July, 1293, he is designed "Willielmus de Gourlay, filius et haeres Willielmi de Gourlay."⁵ He died in the reign of King Robert the Bruce, and was in his lands succeeded by his son Simon de Gourlay, who became coroner of Fife.

Simon de Gourlay of Kincaig married Elizabeth, daughter and heiress of John Alderston of that ilk.

In the year 1345 she conveyed the barony of Alderston to her husband, reserving her life rent. Simon de Gourlay annexed the estate of Alderston to his barony of Kincaig. He had two sons, John and William.

John, the elder son, died young and unmarried.

William, the second son, succeeded to the family estate. He died towards the close of the reign of David II, leaving two sons, John and William.

John of Kincaig, the elder son, married a daughter of Sir Walter Bickerton of Luffness or Aberlady, a notable baron in the reign of Robert III.¹ Dying without surviving issue, he was succeeded by his brother William, who, being of extravagant habits, alienated a portion of the family estate. He was father of Alexander Gourlay, who, in 1394, obtained a warrant from Robert III "for recognoscing in his Majesty's hands, some acres of land in the barony of Kincaig, which his father had mortified to the church of St. Monance, without the consent of the Superior."² Alexander Gourlay married a daughter of ———— Lauder of Balcomie,³ by whom he had a son, John, who, on the 30th July, 1431, was served heir to his father in the lands of Alderston, Plewlands, Caponflat, and others, in the constabulary of Haddington.⁴

In 1457, John Gourlay of Kincaig witnesses the rectification of the boundaries of Kinghorn, Wester, and Easter; also in 1466, the rectification of the lands of Gaytmilk (Goat-milk), in the parish of Kinglassie. He died in the reign of James II, and was succeeded by his son, John Gourlay, who, in 1443, married Elizabeth, daughter of James Abercrombie of Balcormo.⁵

Upon his father's resignation, John Gourlay, on the 28th April, 1444, received from James, Bishop of St. Andrews, a charter of the lands of Innergelly and others. He had two sons, John and Alexander.

Alexander, the second son, was, by his brother John, on the 7th January, 1467, appointed bailie of his barony of Alderston.⁶

John, the elder son, succeeded to Kincaig. As "John Gourlay of Kincaig," he is named on an inquest which, on the 19th May, 1489, found that Sir Norman Leslie was heir of the late Sir David of Leslie, in the barony of Balinbreck.⁷ He married Margaret, daughter of ———— Monypenny of Pitmilly, and by her had a son Alexander.

On the 14th May, 1491, Alexander Gourlay had confirmed to him a charter, whereby his grandfather, John Gourlay of Kincairg, conveyed to him the lands of Alderston and others.¹ On the 14th May, 1492, he had a charter under the Great Seal of the lands of Alderston, Reddercraig, and others; and in 1495 he had sasine of the lands of Kincairg.² On the 7th July, 1511, James IV granted to Alexander Gourlay of Kincairg and his heirs, three-eighth parts of Uchtirmairnie, in the territory of Kennochy (Kennoway), which lands were lately adjudged to be in the King's hands.³

Alexander Gourlay of Kincairg married Helen, daughter of John Cockburn of Ormiston, by whom he had a son, William, also a daughter, Margaret.

Margaret Gourley married Patrick Blackadder of Dundaff; they had, on the 13th April, 1542, a charter of the lands of Dundaff.

William Gourlay had, on the 26th August, 1538, a charter of half the lands of Kincairg, and of Auchtermairnie and others, which he had resigned into the King's hands.⁴ By another charter under the Great Seal, dated the 12th June, 1540, he and his wife, Janet Forman, received half the lands of Kincairg; also the lands of Alderston, Caponflat, Plewlands, Pethdales, and others, in the constabulary of Haddington, which the King incorporated into the free barony of Kincairg.⁵

William Gourlay of Kincairg married, secondly, Janet Kellie; he died in or prior to 1560.⁶

In the barony of Kincairg, William Gourlay was succeeded by his son, Alexander. On the 6th August, 1579, James VI confirmed a charter whereby William Lundy of that ilk granted to Alexander Gourlay half the lands of Kincairg.⁷

Alexander Gourlay of Kincairg married Janet, daughter of Thomas Scott of Abbotshall, who survived him, and died before 1607. Of the marriage were born two sons, Thomas and William. William, the second son, married Elizabeth Balfour.¹

Dying about the year 1600, Alexander Gourlay was succeeded by Thomas, his eldest son. On the 17th July, 1600, Thomas Gourlay had under the Great Seal confirmed to him the lands of Gordonshall, which he had purchased from John Borthwick of Balhouffie.²

Thomas Gourlay married Barbara, daughter of Robert Paterson of Dummure. Under the Great Seal, he and his wife had, on the 15th February, 1587, a charter of the lands and barony of Kincaig.

Thomas Gourlay of Kincaig died in February, 1627; and his testament dative was, on the 14th of the following March, given up by David Brown of Finmonth as a creditor.³

By his wife, Barbara Paterson, Thomas Gourlay had a son, William.

William Gourlay, son of Thomas Gourlay, married Jean, daughter of James Macgill of Nether Rankeillor; their marriage contract is dated 1st April, 1609.

William predeceased his father, leaving a son, Thomas; also a daughter, Janet, who married William Duddingston of Sandford.⁴

From his grandfather, Thomas Gourlay of Kincaig, Thomas, son of William, had, on the 29th May, 1612, a charter of "the sunny half of Kincaig."⁵ In 1631 Thomas succeeded to the barony. He was, as one of the Committee of Parliament in 1644, ardently attached to the cause of Charles I. At the Restoration, he, in reward of service, received the honor of knighthood.

A member of the Archery Company of St. Andrews, he was winner at the competition in 1642, and consequently had the privilege of attaching a silver medal, inscribed with his name and arms, to one of the Company's silver arrows. The arrow, with two others, bearing seventy-nine medals,

As "Sir Thomas Gourley of Kincaig, Knight," he had, on the 19th September, 1653, sasine of a mansion and portion of ground at Elie.¹ He was a commissioner of Supply for Fife and Kinross in 1655, 1656, and 1659.² He died about 1670.

Sir Thomas Gourlay married Janet, daughter of Robert Bruce of Pitlogie,³ by whom he had two sons, Thomas and John; also two daughters, Jane and Margaret.

Jane, elder daughter, married, 26th June, 1656, Robert Lentrone, Provost of St. Andrews, with issue a son, James, baptized 23d April, 1657.⁴

Margaret, second daughter, was baptized on the 12th March, 1642.⁵ She married, 28th December, 1665, Nathaniel Spens of Lathallan;⁶ a sasine proceeding on their marriage contract is dated 3d November, 1665.⁷ On the 3d March, 1670, she received in liferent, a charter of the east half of the lands of Lathallan, on her husband's resignation.⁸

She had a son, Thomas.⁹

John, younger son of Sir Thomas Gourlay, studied medicine, first at Edinburgh, and afterwards in Paris; he, thereafter, practiced as a physician at Elie, in Fife. In 1660 he married Margaret, daughter of Dr. Sharp, physician in Edinburgh.¹⁰ On the occasion of his marriage, he received from his father a small portion of the Alderston estate.¹¹ He died in 1667, leaving two daughters, Margaret and Helen.¹²

Thomas, the elder son, died in 1661, predeceasing his father. He married, 24th July, 1657, Margaret, daughter of William Forbes, younger of Rires, by whom he had three sons; also a daughter Margaret, who married first, her cousin, Thomas Spens of Lathallan; and secondly, the Rev. Hew Kemp, minister at Dunfermline.

Of the three sons of Thomas Gourlay and Margaret Forbes, Arthur, born posthumously, and baptized 1st March, 1662,¹ died young.

Thomas, the eldest son, baptized 8th October, 1658,² succeeded his grandfather in the barony of Kincairg.

Of remarkable strength, no one might venture to wrestle with him; and when the mansion of Kincairg was being erected, and a lintel gave way, he sustained the weight on his shoulders till a support was provided.³

He died in April, 1683, unmarried.⁴

William Gourlay, second son of Thomas Gourlay and Margaret Forbes, was baptized 17th January, 1660.⁵

In 1683 he succeeded his brother in the barony of Kincairg, and died in December, 1718.⁶ He married Jean, only child of John Lessells, Provost of Haddington. He had three sons, Thomas, William, and John; also three daughters.

Janet, the eldest daughter, married Captain Reid of the Dragoons, with issue a daughter, who married —— Ker of Cavers.

Helen, second daughter, died unmarried.

Jean, third daughter, married Dr. John Scott of Coats.

Of his sons, Thomas, the eldest, predeceased his father.

William, second son, succeeded to Kincairg, and died in 1776.⁷ He married a daughter of George Seton of Pitmedden (who died in 1792), with issue a son, George, and a daughter, Mary Anne.

Mary Anne Gourlay married Dr. Tait, surgeon in Elie, and died in 1776, without issue.⁸

George Gourlay, younger, of Kincairg, married, in 1757, Margaret, only child of William Robertson, of the family of Bedlay, Writer to the Signet.

He predeceased his father, dying prior to the 14th January, 1774, when his testament dative was given up by his son William, and his daughters, Margaret and Mary.¹

William, only son of George Gourlay, succeeded to the barony of Kincaig on the death of his grandfather in 1776.² In 1792 he died unmarried.

John, third son of William Gourlay and Jean Lessells, settled in Haddington as a wine merchant. He married Elizabeth, daughter of David Plenderleath of Kailzie, by whom he had a son, William. This gentleman some time practiced as a physician in Madeira, and in 1792 succeeded his cousin, William, in the barony of Kincaig. He died on the 18th November, 1827, aged sixty-six. He is commemorated on a mural tablet at the family burying-place in Kilconquhar churchyard.

William Gourlay of Kincaig married first, in 1787, Catharine, daughter of Colonel Philip Van Cortlandt, of America, by whom he had a son, John; also four daughters.

John Gourlay, who succeeded his father in the barony of Kincaig, died in December, 1833, unmarried, and was in the lands succeeded by his cousin, Margaret Gourlay, daughter of George, and granddaughter of William of Kincaig. She died in 1846, unmarried, and was succeeded by her cousin, Catherine, eldest daughter of William Gourlay of Kincaig.

Catherine Gourlay, latterly of Kincaig, married first, Captain Roden Douglas, Royal Navy, and secondly, James Bean of Madeira. She died in December, 1864.

Elizabeth, second daughter of William Gourlay of Kincaig, died unmarried.

Gertrude, fourth daughter, died unmarried.

Jean Plenderleath, third daughter, married John Austin, general in the Portuguese service, and settled in Madeira. She died in 1823, leaving a son and three daughters.

William Edmund Craufurd Austin, only son of General Austin and Jean Plenderleath Gourlay, born in 1821, succeeded his aunt Catherine Gourlay as proprietor of Kincaig, when he assumed the additional name of Gourlay. He is M. A., and rector of Stanton St. John, Oxfordshire.

On the 23d January, 1589, Walter Gourlay, portioner of King's Kettle, executed his will. He appointed his wife, Isobel Lummisdain, as his executrix, and provided that in the event of her second marriage, Walter Heriot of Ramorgany (Ramornie), and Mr. Thomas Lummisdain, "persoun of Kinkell," should become tutors to his eldest son.¹

On the 26th December, 1605, Walter Gourlay, son and heir of the deceased Walter Gourlay, portioner of King's Kettle, obtained sasine of the fourth part of the lands of King's Kettle.²

FAMILIES AT DYSART, WEMYSS, SCOONIE, ELIE, AND ANSTRUTHER.

At Edinburgh, on the 14th April, 1513, Robert Gourlay, burgess of Dysart, and Grissel Wemyss, his spouse, had a charter of the lands of Hauch, on the resignation of Andrew Kynnymmonth.³

Magnus Gourlay, burgess of Wester Wemyss, granted, on the 31st August, 1622, an obligation to Thomas Alexander of Drumeldrie, for £215.⁴

On the 3d February, 1659, Thomas Gourlay, in Scoonie, and Christian Pittillok, his wife, had sasine in a tenement in the sea town of Largo.⁵

Scions of the House of Gourlay of Kincaig had settled at Elie, in or prior to the seventeenth century.

At the baptism of a child of George Gourlay, in Elie, on the 12th June, 1672, the laird of Kincaig was a witness.⁶ George Gourlay was captain of a coasting vessel, and owner of the eighth of "The Hopewell of Anstruther," and tenth of "The Margaret of Elie." He died in March, 1776, when his "free gear" was valued at £2,467, 6s. 8d. He bequeathed £100 for "a handsome burial stane to be placed abune his corps"; and made provision that in the failure of his own children, his substance should be inherited by the children of his brother, John, skipper or ship-captain in Anstruther.¹

At Elie, on the west of Auchmuty's Wynd, and close to the sea, a large house of castellated form, and evidently built in the sixteenth century, was the property of the Kin-craig family. It was probably used as a marine residence.²

FAMILY OF DUNFERMLINE.

To a Precept by Archbishop James Beaton of St. Andrews, for the induction of Sir Walter Stewart to the parish church of St. Ninian's of Kirktown, dated at the Abbey of Dunfermline, 10th November, 1527, Alexander Gourlay is a witness.³

At Torry, on the 7th April, 1542, a charter of sale was granted by Henry Stewart of Rossyth to Margaret Gourlay, lady of Torry, in liferent, and to Patrick Blacater, her son, in fee, of the lands of Dunduff, in the barony of Rossyth. One of the witnesses is James Gourlay.⁴

To a Precept of Sasine, dated at Dunfermline, 3d March, 1544, Thomas Gourlay is a witness. Thomas Gourlay and his wife had, about the year 1555, a charter of feu ferme of the seventeenth part of Over Grange of South Ferry.⁵

Between the years 1555 and 1583, William Durie and Jeanne Gourlay, his wife, had a charter of feu ferme of a fourth part of the lands of Newlands; they had also a charter of the lands of Kelty.⁶ On the 7th June, 1566, Robert, Archdean of St. Andrews, granted to William Durie and Jean Gourlay, his wife, in free tenement, a charter of the lands of Medo-end, in the regality of Dunfermline.⁷

FAMILY AT KINGHORN.

About the year 1555 John Gourlay of Kin-craig received "an assedation" of the eighteenth part of Over Grange of Kinghorn Wester.⁸

George Gourlay, skipper-burgess of Kinghorn, and his wife, Marion Cunningham, had, in December, 1646, sasine of eighty marks out of tenements of land called Killeraik of Kinghorn.²

On the 18th June, 1706, William Gourlay, burgess of Kinghorn, received from William Edmond an obligation for £70.³

FAMILIES IN CERES.

A branch of the family of Kinraig settled in the parish of Ceres early in the seventeenth century. On the 18th May, 1629, Thomas Mortoun at Pitscottie, a deacon of the parish church of Ceres, and his wife, Margaret Gourlay, had a child baptized, one of the witnesses being Sir John Hope of Craighall.⁴

On the 7th October, 1674, Thomas Gourlay, tenant in Baldirran, parish of Ceres, received sasine of an annual rent of £80 out of the lands of Baltullie and the lands of Kirkland.⁵ His testament dative was on the 19th February, 1683, given up by his widow, on behalf of Thomas
Gourlay, their only son, his free gear being valued at £959, 1s, 8d.⁶

John Gourlay, farmer in Kinninmonth, parish of Ceres, died in December, 1695. In his inventory, given up by his widow, his "free gear" is valued at £369.⁷

John Gourlay married, in June, 1674, Elizabeth Carstares, of the parish of Kilconquhar.⁸ His son, John, farmer, at Denhead in the parish of Ceres, died prior to the 10th
November, 1723.⁹

John Gourlay, farmer at Denhead, had by his wife, Helen

Black, an eldest son, Robert, who was born 27th October, 1704.¹ He succeeded to his father's lease of Denhead farm, and on the 14th November, 1737, received in feu the mill lands of Craigrothie.² He married Barbara, daughter of William Beath, residing at Kilmuck, parish of Scoonie, and by her had four sons, William, John, Oliver, and David.³

Oliver, the third son, was baptized on the 18th August, 1740. Having some years engaged in legal pursuits at Edinburgh, he returned to his native county.

In April, 1774, he had sasine of the lands of Newton Leys, Bonnybanks, Newbigging, and others, in the parish of Ceres, and in April, 1779, he obtained the lands of Balhilly, Craigrothie Mill, and the Mains of Scotstarvet.⁴

In acquiring these and other lands, Oliver Gourlay was led to believe that by a course of high farming he would attain opulence. Ardent in his enterprises, he, in 1780, invited the Town Council of St. Andrews to construct a superior road between their city and his estate, assuring them that thereby they "would eternize their names."⁵ Impressed by his agricultural activities, capitalists extended to him a large credit, so that prior to 1803 he was enabled to purchase the estate of Kilmaron, near Cupar-Fife, of which the modern rental was upwards of £3,000.⁶ But Mr. Gourlay failed in his agricultural adventures, and, disposing of his lands, he retired from public concerns. He died on the 10th October, 1819, in his eightieth year.⁷

Oliver Gourlay married, in 1774, Janet, only daughter of Thomas Fleming, tenant in Nether Friarton; she died 10th October, 1827, at the age of seventy-three.⁸

Of the marriage were born two sons, Robert Fleming and Thomas; also five daughters, Catherine, Barbara, Janet, Helen, and Margaret.⁹

Robert Fleming Gourlay, the elder son, was born on the 24th March, 1778.¹⁰ After studying for several sessions at the University of St. Andrews, he began a political career by printing a pamphlet on Reform, and covertly distributing copies throughout the county. As his opinions were extreme, and his mode of propagating them obnoxious, it was determined to charge him with sedition. From this difficulty Mr. Gourlay made an escape by removing to England, and there renting a small farm at Deptford in Kent. Subsequently emigrating to Canada, he there acquired a large tract of land, on which he endeavored to induce his countrymen to make settlements. On the resources of Canada he published a work in three volumes; also a number of pamphlets. Returning from America, he made a progress throughout Great Britain, setting forth his views on public affairs, more especially on emigration. Having experienced some inattention at the hands of Henry, afterwards Lord Brougham, he, in the lobby of the House of Commons, attacked him with a horsewhip, an escapade which led to his being sent to prison.

During a long career he committed many other extravagances; but in private life he was generous, humane, and circumspect.

He died on the 1st August, 1863, at the age of eighty-five. In the family burying-ground at Ceres, he has been careful to denote his descent from "Ingelramus Gourlay, who came from England with Prince William about the year 1174."

Robert Fleming Gourlay was twice married, but his race is extinct in the male line.

FAMILIES AT ST. ANDREWS.

William Gourlay, one of the collectors of customs at St. Andrews, rendered his account on the 14th June, 1403, also on the 8th July, 1404, and on the 22d March, 1405-6.¹

David Gourlay of Southfield, parish of Largo, died on the 8th October, 1627.² By his second wife, Christian Ramsay, he had two sons, Alexander and Robert.

Alexander, the elder son, succeeded his father in the lands of Southfield, which, on the 29th July, 1630, he sold to his brother, Robert.¹ On the 13th June, 1628, he, on a charter from Archbishop John Spottiswood of St. Andrews, had sasine of half the lands of Polduff, otherwise called Smiddiegreen, in the lordship of Byrehills (Boarhills).² From Smiddiegreen he, prior to 1636, removed to the farm of Lamboletham, which he took on lease.³ On the 10th June, 1645, he had sasine of a tenement of land at Anstruther.⁴

Alexander Gourlay married Susannah Jardine, by whom he had three sons, Alexander, James, and David; also three daughters, Margaret, Marjory, and Janet.

At the baptism of Alexander, the eldest son, on the 27th September, 1629, the Archdean of St. Andrews was a witness.⁵

To Thomas Gourlay, advocate in St. Andrews, and his wife, Margaret Clephane, Sir Alexander Drummond of Gibliston granted a bond for 500 merks; it is dated at St. Andrews, 5th November, 1629.⁶

On the 29th June, 1649, David Gourlay, son and heir of the late David Gourlay, citizen of St. Andrews, obtained sasine on a precept from Chancery, as heir to his father, in nine acres and two roods of arable land in the neighborhood of the burgh.⁷

To Walter Gourlay and his wife, Bessie Watson, at St. Andrews, was baptized, on the 18th April, 1628, a son, Robert.⁸ Robert settled as a trader in his native city. He married Margaret Dishart, by whom he had three sons, William, James, and John.⁹

John, the third and youngest son, was baptized on the 27th August, 1667.¹⁰ Conducting business as a manufacturer in St. Andrews, he attained a measure of opulence. By his wife, Agnes Miller, he had a son, Robert.

Robert Gourlay, son of John Gourlay and Agnes Miller, was born on the 28th September, 1707. Obtaining a share

Of the four daughters of John Brown Gourlay, Margaret, born in 1829, and Sarah, born in 1834, are unmarried. Agnes, third daughter, born in 1838, married Charles B. Aikman, solicitor in Glasgow, without issue. Isabella, fourth daughter, born in 1842, married Thomas Clark, Largs, with issue, a son.

Thomas, fifth son of Robert Gourlay and Agnes Liddell, born 16th October, 1802, died young and unmarried.

James, youngest son of Robert Gourlay, born at St. Andrews on the 3d June, 1804, was one of the leading accountants in Glasgow. After retiring from business, he, in 1855, accepted an agency for the Bank of Scotland at Laurieston in the same city. A magistrate of Glasgow, he was a chief promoter of the Lock Katrine Water Scheme. He died in May, 1872. In 1830 he married Jeanie Cleland (who died in September, 1870), with issue, one son and four daughters.

Agnes, the eldest daughter, born 15th December, 1833, married, in 1858, her cousin, Robert Gourlay, with issue.

Jane, second daughter, born in February, 1836, died in 1886, unmarried.

Annie, third daughter, born 26th April, 1838, married, in 1861, Henry Shaw Macpherson, merchant in Glasgow, with issue.

Helen, fourth and youngest daughter, born 6th April, 1843, is unmarried.

Robert, only son of James Gourlay and Jeanie Cleland, born 13th July, 1840, is manager of the Bank of Scotland, Glasgow, and a magistrate of the County of Lanark.

He married, in March, 1868, Mary Brown Hastings Moffat, Gateside, Kirkconnel, Dumfriesshire, who died 17th December, 1877. Of the marriage were born three sons: James, born 1869; Robert Cleland, born 1871; Francis Nicholson Moffat, born 1872; also two daughters, Agnes Jessie and Mary Moffat, both of whom died in infancy.

FAMILIES IN LANARKSHIRE.

On the 19th July, 1576, James VI confirmed a charter whereby, on the 3d May, 1561, Mr. Arthur Hamilton, provost of the Collegiate Church of Hamilton, granted to

FROM THE

PORTER GENEALOGY,

COMPILED BY

HENRY PORTER ANDREWS.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., 1893.

Vol. I, pp. 371-2.

WILLIAM GURLEY came from Inverness, Scotland, with the family of Rev. Soloman Stoddard, to Northampton, Mass. He married Hester Ingersoll, born August 3, 1663, daughter of John Ingersoll, of Northampton, who married, September 12, 1637, Abigail Bascom, daughter of Thomas Bascom, from England.

WILLIAM GURLEY was drowned, May 1, 1687.

She married (second husband) Benoni Jones, who was killed by Indians, May 13, 1704, she being taken to Canada, where she died in captivity.

WILLIAM GURLEY,

ONE OF THE

FIRST SETTLERS OF NORTHAMPTON, MASS.

WILLIAM GURLEY, of Northampton, Mass., afterwards of Coventry and Mansfield, Conn., was born in Inverness, Scotland, in 1665, and came with the family of Rev. Solomon Stoddard from England to Northampton, Mass., in 1679, at the age of 14 years; in whose family he was brought up and educated.

William Gurley married Hester Ingersoll ——— 1684, daughter of John and Abigail (Bascom) Ingersoll. Abigail Bascom was daughter of Thomas Bascom from England.

Hester Ingersoll was born Aug. 3, 1663.

Mr. William Gurley was accidentally drowned in the Connecticut River May 1, 1687, at the age of 22 years.

He is reputed to have been truly pious and a sincere follower of Jesus Christ.

Children of William Gurley and Hester Ingersoll, his wife, one only:

1. SAMUEL, born May 17, 1687.

After his death his widow married Benoni Jones of Northampton, Mass., January 23, 1689, by whom she had four children, viz.:

Jonathan, born Jan. 4, 1695; and died young.

Benjamin, " 1696; and settled in Coventry, Conn.

Ebenezer, " Nov. 12, 1698.

Jonathan, " Mar. 3, 1703.

The two last, together with their father, were slain by the enemy at Poscumuck, north end of Mount Tom, Northampton, Mass., May 13, 1704.

The following is taken from the History of Rev. John Williams, who was also a captive in Canada at the time of

Mrs. Gurley's (alias Jones) death, etc., and conversed with her daily:

" At the time of the massacre at Poscummock, north end of Mount Tom, Mass., there were three families dwelling there, the enemy (Indians) beat down and killed the men and children like brutes, and after ransacking the houses they set them on fire, and took the three women and what plunder they desired to Canada, where one of the women soon died; on the arrival of the women in Canada the Catholic priests soon went to work trying to convert them to their religion. One of the women, says Rev. Mr. Williams, they got to confess their religion without much difficulty, but the Jones woman was very reluctant and obstinate, but, finally, was taken sick, and the priests constantly annoying and tormenting her night and day, got her to say she confessed their religion, and tried to make her promise that if she ever got well and returned to Connecticut, that she would try to convert her friends and relatives to become Catholics, and when her tongue had become so dry that she could not speak, the priest anointed her with his holy oil, and she departed this life Nov. 27, 1705.

" Rev. Mr. Williams."

Taken from the History of Deerfield, Mass.:

" Those carried to Canada were Esther, wife of Benoni Jones; her niece, Margaret Huggins, eighteen years old; and Elisha, son of John Searls, eight years old. (Margaret Huggins afterwards returned to Conn.)

" The slain were Samuel Janes, forty years old, with his wife, Sarah, and children, Obadiah, five years old; Ebenezer, three years old; and Sarah, one year old. Also four children of Benjamin Janes: Hannah, eight years old; Marion, four years old; Nathan, one year old; and one of unknown name and age.

" Benoni Jones, about thirty years old, with his children: Ebenezer, six years old; and Jonathan, one year old.

" Also John Searls, about fifty-eight years old, and three children."

Another account, as follows, viz.:

" May 12th. Pascomock Fort taken by y^e French & Indians, being about seventy-two.

" They took and captivated y^e whole Garrison, being about thirty-seven persons.

GURLEY BURVING GROUND,
(Mansfield, Conn.)

“ The English pursuing of them caused them to knock all the Captives on the head, save five or six.

“ Three were carried to Canada with them; the others escaped, and about seven of those knocked on the head recovered. Y^e rest died. Capt. John Taylor was killed in the fight, and Samuel Bartlette wounded.”

The author of this history hopes its readers will ever think how Mrs. Esther Jones must have felt at the time of the slaying of her husband and two children, and what must have been the thoughts of that Christian woman during her captivity before her death in Canada. What must have been her thoughts of her two small children she had left in Connecticut, and by being tormented day and night by those Catholic priests, who were trying to convert her to their religion? Those must have been long days and wearisome nights. These are thoughts that the reader will do well to ponder, and also the history of the Irish Rebellion of 1798.

DESCENDANTS IN THE LINE OF SAMUEL GURLEY, SON OF WILLIAM GURLEY.

Peters, wife of Gen. Absalom Peters of that town, who, by this bereavement, is left the second time a widow at the advanced age of 83 years. Mrs. Peters was a sister of the Rev. Dr. Porter of Catskill, New York, was for many years the wife of the Rev. John Gurley, deceased, pastor of a church in Lebanon, and mother of the Rev. Ralph Randolph Gurley, Secretary of the American Colonization Society. She was married to her surviving husband in 1820, and by her amiable, dignified, and Christian deportment quality, endeared herself to his numerous family and friends. Her character in all the relations of life was peculiarly excellent and her humble, consistent, and confiding piety, as it was her adornment while living, prepared her for a calm and peaceful death. The remembrance of her name and example is precious. — Communication.

| 120. SAPHRONA SPAFFORD, | " Jan. 26, 1808. |
| 121. MARY, | " June 19, 1813. |

Jesse Gurley having been born and reared in Mansfield, and having resided in the same general neighborhood until middle life, his character and reputation which he maintained were fully established. No stain or reproach were ever attached to his name. An intelligent, broad-minded, just man, he won the respect and confidence of all who knew him.

In early manhood he became a member of the Baptist Church in Mansfield, and his daily life was an illustration of the true man and active Christian.

That church, then, was a strong, influential body, and manifested its appreciation of his abilities by early appointing him as clerk of the church, and, later, chose him a deacon, which office he held until bodily infirmities laid him aside from active duties, and necessitated his removal to another locality.

The Rev. Dr. Cherry, who officiated at his funeral in Philadelphia, who had known him intimately for years, said of him: "While in the church at Mansfield he was one of the first to engage in the work of modern missions, Sabbath-school, and other kindred benevolent enterprises. And in these respects he left behind him in that town, as I had the means of knowing as a subsequent pastor of that church, the savor of that name. Before I had ever seen his form, I often heard the name of Deacon Gurley spoken as if cherished with grateful remembrance. He was known there in the midst of his days and in the full vigor of his early manhood, as a man of correct principles, and of high and conscientious regard for Christian obligation. The reputation he left behind him in that town approaches near the description given in that familiar line, 'An honest man the noblest work of God.'"

Since leaving Mansfield he has been connected with the churches in Marlborough, Colchester borough, Central Norwich in Connecticut, the First Church, Springfield, Mass., and the Tabernacle in Philadelphia, Pa.

A daughter, who still survives him, says that not one unpleasant thought is connected with the memory of her father, no disagreeable habit or manner, no outburst of temper, no hasty, unreasonable requirement or rebuke, no moody gloom, forebodings, or complaint, yet, ever firm and resolute with cheerful alacrity, putting his hand to whatever duty or labor was presented before him.

His physical sufferings were great for more than twenty years, but he patiently endured to the end, when, without a groan or struggle, he fell asleep.

"Asleep in Jesus. Oh, how sweet,
To be for such a slumber meet!"

Jacob B. Gurley, Esq., of New London, Conn., was born in the town of Mansfield, Tolland Co., Conn., Aug. 2, 1771 (house shows by photo.). He attended the common schools of the town, and graduated at Dartmouth College in 1793. He was principal or preceptor of the Union School at New London, studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1797, and became one of the ablest lawyers in New London County. Mr. Gurley was one of the incorporators of the Savings Bank at New London, 1827. He was a public spirited man, and did much for the advancement of the town and city.

Soon after the death of his father, he became the owner of the homestead, which he owned the remainder of his life, and rented it during these years to his son-in-law, Mr. Anson Turner.

After the death of Mr. Gurley this farm came into the possession of his son-in-law, Mr. Charles A. Gurley, who kept it but a few years, and then sold it. This farm had been in the possession of the Gurleys for over a century, and is situated a little south of the old Gurley burying-ground.

Charles Griswold Gurley, son of Jacob B. Gurley, Esq., graduated at Yale College, 1827, and died July 4, 1828.

EBENEZER GURLEY, of Mansfield, Conn., was married to Sally Balcom, daughter of Joseph Balcom, of the same town, Jan. 1, 1800.

Mrs. Sally Gurley died April 21, 1864, at the age of 89 years.

Mr. Ebenezer Gurley died July 3, 1864, at the age of 87 years.

 144. JOSEPH BALCOM, " April 9, 1811; died ———, aged 14 years.
 145. SARAH, " Aug. 17, 1815.

Mr. Ebenezer Gurley always resided in the town where he was born; he received his education at the common school, and for a time was engaged as clerk in some of the stores of the town, but the larger part of his life was occupied in farming. He became totally blind quite a number of years before his death, and during all the latter part of his life, he and his wife were supported by their son, E. R. Gurley.

Mrs. Sally Gurley was a woman who took great delight in having her grandchildren visit her, to which the writer of this book can testify. She was remarkably kind, and through all her troubles and trials of life she showed a great degree of patience and christian fortitude.

She was a member of the North Parish Congregational Church, where she used to attend in her earlier married life.

Mr. Ebenezer Gurley was the last Gurley to live on the old Jonathan Gurley homestead, now (1896) owned and improved by the Costellos, and is situated about one-half mile west of the North Parish Congregational Church.

This house is shown with Jonathan Gurley's record.

- 154. MARIA, " Jan. 21, 1807.

Children by 2d marriage: None.

Mr. Ephraim Gurley was one of Mansfield's most ingenious and business men, he resided in the village of Gurleyville, which was named after him. He commenced in his early manhood the manufacture of screw-augers and steel-yards, which he manufactured in large quantities and supplied nearly the whole of New England with them. They were made by means of a trip-hammer to draw out the steel from large bars to nearly their proper shape, and then finished by himself and his workmen.

He was an honest, upright man, and had the respect of all who knew him; for many years he was a member of the North Parish Congregational Church, but, in 1826, he left that church and united with the Methodist Church at Gurleyville.

Capt. Roger Gurley lived nearly all his life in the town of Mansfield, Conn; for a number of years he lived at Mansfield, Four-Corners (so called), where he built a tavern, which he kept, and was postmaster of that office for a number of years. Capt. Gurley, for quite a number of years, was engaged in farming, and owned the farm afterwards known as the James Chapman Farm, situated about one-fourth mile north of the North Parish Congregational Church, on the west side of the highway. He was a man who took an active part in the political affairs of the town, and represented it in the Legislature in the year 1823.

In the year 1835 Capt. Roger Gurley bought a building lot on Union Street, Willimantic, Conn., where he and his son-in-law, Mr. Joseph Woodward, built a two-story frame house, each owning one-half of said house, where Capt. Gurley lived the remainder of his life.

Among papers left by Capt. Roger Gurley is a warrant signed by Lieut.-Col. Lebeus Larrabee of the 5th Reg. Conn. Militia. He also had a commission as Lieut. of the 6th Company in the 5th Reg. of Militia in the State of Connecticut, April 12, 1803, by Jonathan Trumbull, signed May 19, 1803.

Capt. Roger Gurley was for many years a member of the North Parish Congregational Church, from which he took a letter, Nov. 7, 1830, to the Congregational Church at Willimantic, Conn.

Children by third marriage: None.

Mr. George Gurley was born in the homestead yet standing, the birthplace of his father and grandfather. He was educated in the common and high schools of Mansfield. His father died after a brief illness, when he was fifteen years of age. Soon after he was apprenticed to learn the cabinet-making trade of Mr. Allen of Windham Center, Conn.

In 1832 he came to Pulaski, N. Y., and engaged in the manufacture of furniture, doing a steady lucrative business, and devoted his time to administering estates until 1868, when he sold out his furniture business, and attended to his personal matters. He has been deeply interested in educational affairs. He was one of the founders of the Pulaski Academy, treasurer at the time of its erection, and was an active member of the board of trustees for twenty consecutive years, a portion of this time acting as president of the board.

He has held many offices of trust in the community in which he has resided for sixty-five years, and filled them to the entire satisfaction of those who reposed confidence in him, honest in purpose, true to right and just convictions, inflexible in honor, wide reaching in intelligence.

Mr. Gurley resides in the same house he built and moved into sixty years ago, carries the infirmities of age well, still devotes his time to the good of his surroundings, enjoying the greater part of it in reading. His name is one of the household words of the vicinity in which he has so long resided, and will live with the truest and noblest who have won its chief honors. (1897.)

| 280. GEORGE PIERCE, | " Nov. 2, 1857; " " " |
| 281. ELIZABETH GRISWOLD, | " Oct. 22, 1859. |

Mr. Charles A. Gurley was born in the same house that had been the birthplace of his father and grandfather. He received his education in the district school, and spent his youth and early manhood on the farm of his father, who died when he was about 11 years of age, when the care of the farm and the mother was left to him and his older brother, George.

When twenty-one years of age he engaged in commercial pursuits in New York city, and at the age of thirty-eight went to San Francisco, where he remained about three years. It was during the period of his residence in California that the question of its territorial condition in respect to the introduction of slavery, or the maintenance of free institutions, was under consideration. He gave all his influence to the object of making it a free territory. In 1851 Mr. Gurley returned to New London, Conn., where he married and remained until 1860, when he retired from commercial business, and removed with his family to Pulaski, N. Y., where he resided and made his home until 1882; after this time he only lived there winters, he purchasing a number of farms on Spring Hill (Mansfield), the town of his birth, which was ever dear to him, where he spent his summers diverting himself in improving these farms by getting out many rocks and otherwise making improvements by repairing the houses and building several large new barns.

Mr. Gurley, as a man, had marked individualities: independent as a thinker; honest in purpose; true to right and just convictions; inflexible in honor; affectionate in temper; wide-reaching in intelligence; and delightful as a conversationalist. His happiest hours were spent at his home with his family.

After the death of his wife, who was ever dear to him, and heavy financial losses, his mind for a time became slightly unbalanced, but soon recovered so as to be able to have the care and control of his business. He died leaving a large property.

289. JOSEPHINE S., born Jan. 30, 1853; single (1896).

Jacob Baker Gurley was born in the town of Mansfield, Conn., Sept. 26, 1803, and always resided in his native town. He was a farmer and merchant, and carried on both kinds of business successfully. In his mercantile business he kept all kinds of goods usually kept in a country store. He was honest in his dealings, and sold his goods for a very small profit, as was the custom in those days. In politics he was a Democrat, but never sought office, preferring to attend to his own business, which he considered much more profitable for him, but, by the wish of his party, he was nominated and elected to the Legislature of his town in the year 1843.

THE LIFE OF EBENEZER R. GURLEY.

In the death of Ebenezer R. Gurley, which occurred on Tuesday night, Feb. 22d, Mansfield loses one of its most prominent and best known citizens, and, it may be added, its most wealthy resident. Few men in eastern Connecticut are more extensively known outside their immediate bailiwick than was Mr. Gurley, and to none was the appellation, "honest, square business man," more frequently applied.

Mr. Gurley was the second son of Ebenezer Gurley, who resided in the North Parish, and was born October 17, 1808, thus being in the seventy-ninth year at the time of his death.

He sprung from illustrious stock, the family name being among the most honored in Mansfield's history. Mr. Gurley was a direct descendant of Judge Jacob B. Gurley of New London county, and Judge Artemus Gurley of Windham county, both eminent jurists of their time; while going back a generation, we find Deacon Jonathan Gurley, a sterling patriot, and who was selected as one of the delegates from the town of Mansfield to a convention called at Hartford, September 13, 1774, to take counsel and action on "the interesting concerns of the day," a subject, the nature of which we, who are on deck, an hundred years later, can readily surmise, and easily imagine the kind of man who would be selected as counsel in the perilous days preceding the American Revolution.

This, then, was the character of Mr. Gurley's ancestry, and, so far as patriotism, honesty of purpose, and fidelity to trust are concerned, it must be admitted that Mr. Gurley's life bore abundant and satisfactory evidence that the stock had not deteriorated in any essential particular.

Spending his boyhood on his father's farm, he accepted, when a young man, the offer of a position as clerk for a cotton manufacturing company, at Eagleville (now the J. L. Ross property), and remained there several years, or until his marriage to a daughter of the late William Gardiner of Mansfield.

From Eagleville he removed to the Oak Tree farm in North Mansfield, now owned by Mrs. Augustus Storrs, and a half-dozen years later he bought the Uriah Hanks farm, where he resided a few years, and afterwards exchanged the property for the Gurleyville mills, a grist-mill and a saw-mill combined. In this connection it may be mentioned, as showing the business enterprise of the man, that he was the first in this section to buy corn by the cargo in New York, ship it by boat to Norwich, thence transport it by teams to his mills at Mansfield, where it was ground into meal and sold to the farmers for miles around.

He subsequently disposed of the mills to a kinsman, Lucius Gurley, and a Mr. Samuel Cross, and commenced to turn his attention to the silk business, which at that time was a prominent manufacturing industry in Mansfield.

It had been his custom for several years, after the spring work on his farm was well in hand, to take a quantity of sewing silk and make a peddling excursion through Vermont, New Hampshire, and other New England States, and these were attended with pecuniary profit which seemed to follow in the wake of the early Yankee peddlers. He made one trip through the South as a book-agent, and made a financial success of it. The experience gained in these peddling tours, doubtless, suggested the idea of engaging in manufacturing, for a few years later we find him engaged with P. W. Turner in manufacturing silk at Tolland.

About 1861 he went to New York city, where a shrewd manipulation in raw silk with Stephen Goodrich, a well-known importer, which involved the purchase of all certain grades of raw silk in the market and to arrive, he cleared a very large amount and took rank among the wealthiest men of his section.

For many years he was a director in the Chatham National Bank of New York city, and served several terms as a director of the Willimantic Savings Institute. For the past few years his health has been gradually failing, but his last illness covered a space of less than a day. He leaves a widow (his second wife), two sons, Andrew J. Gurley of Stonington, Albert E. Gurley of Spring Hill (Mansfield); and Mary, wife of the Hon. Ralph W. Storrs of Mansfield. His funeral was largely attended, Friday, the Rev. Messrs. Gladden and Brigham conducting the services. The interment was at the Gurley cemetery in North Mansfield.

[Hartford Courant.]

THE LATE E. R. GURLEY.

The funeral of the late Ebenezer R. Gurley took place at his old home in Mansfield on Friday last, and was attended by a number from Willimantic, and others from a distance.

The deceased was one of the foremost citizens of Mansfield. Beginning without means, by keen business instincts, honest trade, and profitable investments, he accumulated an ample fortune, which he has managed to good advantage, often aiding business men and some young men starting in business. He had generous impulses, and many a poor widow and orphan will miss the donations of which none have known but the recipients of his bounty. He had during the past few years suffered from failing sight, but has been able to be about, and was at the street only a day or two before his death.

Mr. Gurley, in his early manhood, was a successful silk peddler, and once traveled through the South as a book-agent, and used to tell that he was taken for a minister, and was invited to preach, which he did to the acceptance of the people. He, at length, became a large dealer in silk, furnishing raw material to manufacturers and sharing in the profits.

He was not a society man, nor a politician, but did what he could to promote good government, and it is said that he wrote to President Lincoln, advising him to issue his emancipation proclamation. He was a man of strict integrity in his business, and if he loaned money, never would take more than legal interest. He was the first man in this section to buy corn by the cargo in New York, ship it by boat to Norwich, thence transport it by teams to his mills at Mansfield, where it was ground into meal and sold to the farmers for miles around.

[Willimantic Journal.]

Mr. Ebenezer R. Gurley received the first medal ever given in the United States as a silk manufacturer, and was one of the first to engage in its manufacture by power and machinery about 1848, at Tolland, then at Mansfield (Hollow), and afterwards at Turnerville, in the town of Hebron, Conn., being in company with his cousin, P. W. Turner.

145.

SARAH GURLEY, daughter of Ebenezer Gurley of Mansfield, Conn., was twice married: 1st. To Edwin R. Thurston of the same town, about 1838. They went to Indiana, where he died Oct. 3, 1853, age 38 years. After his death she returned to Mansfield, Conn., and married Porter Nason of the same town, April 5, 1862.

Mrs. Sarah Nason (alias Thurston) died Oct. 16, 1872, age 57 years.

Mr. Porter Nason died May 8, 1895, age 67 years.

Mrs. Sarah Nason (alias Thurston) never had any children. She was noted for her beauty, and, in her school days, was the belle of Mansfield.

Mr. Edwin R. Thurston was born June 20, 1812.

146.

EPHRAIM GURLEY, of Troy, N. Y., formerly of Mansfield, Conn., was married to Clarissa Sharpe, daughter of Solomon Sharpe of Pomfret, Conn., Nov. 27, 1812.

Mr. Ephraim Gurley died Feb. 7, 1829, in the 40th year of his age.

His widow, Mrs. Clarissa Gurley, died Dec. 26, 1874, aged 85 years.

| 302. LEWIS EPHRAIM, | " Dec. 30, 1826. |

Ephraim Gurley of Troy, N. Y., was born at Gurleyville (Mansfield), Conn., March 4, 1789; at the age of two and twenty years he went to Gibbonsville, now West Troy. He returned to Mansfield in the fall of 1812, as he had done in the fall of the previous year. During this trip to Mansfield he married his wife; early in the following year he moved to Gibbonsville with his wife and such household furniture as could be conveniently transported across the country, where, in 1816, he established a small foundry.

In 1818 he entered into partnership with Alpheus and Truman Hanks, under the name of Hanks, Gurley & Co., and established the first iron foundry in the city of Troy. Here they began casting gearing for grist, fulling, and saw-mills, potash kettles, cauldrons, and agricultural implements.

On April 14, 1821, the partnership of Hanks, Gurley & Co. was dissolved; he then went into partnership with Charles and Nathaniel Starbuck, under the firm name of Starbucks & Gurley. This new firm added the casting of stove plates to their business, which was the beginning of one of the most important of the city's subsequent industries.

Their furnace and machine shop was burned down July 20, 1836, but this caused them but a temporary suspension of business, for, on the following Saturday evening, a new building was completed.

In March, 1826, Mr. Gurley purchased the house and lot on the southwest corner of Fifth and Elbow (Fulton) Streets, from Nathan Warren for $2,600, and this property has remained in the possession of his descendants until the present time. Here he died, after a brief illness, on Feb. 7, 1829, closing a life of industry and usefulness. Nearly forty years of age, six feet two inches in stature, having dark hair and eyes, he was a most noticeable man, finely proportioned, robust, and energetic.

Closely devoted to his business, he could never be induced to accept the offices tendered him. A highly esteemed member of the Troy Mechanic Humane Association, his death deprived the society of "one of its brightest ornaments."

147.

CLARISSA GURLEY, daughter of Ephraim Gurley of Mansfield, Conn., married Jesse Dunham of the same town, Oct. 15, 1812.

Mr. Jesse Dunham died Sept. 7, 1863, aged 74 years.

Mr. Jonathan Gurley of Morrisville, N. Y., was born in Mansfield, Conn., March 1, 1793. He was the oldest son of Capt. Roger Gurley and Pamela Bicknel. By trade he was a comb-maker, which in those days was a profitable branch of industry.

In 1827 Mr. Gurley moved with his family from Mansfield to Morrisville, Madison Co., N. Y. Their journey up the Hudson River from New York to Albany was made in a sailing packet, and occupied six days. Soon after his coming to Morrisville, he established himself in the business of comb-making, which he followed with profit, until his declining years.

Mr. Gurley was for fifty years a member of the Congregational Church of Morrisville, and for many years clerk and trustee of the society, always taking an interest in its temporal and spiritual prosperity.

In politics he was a Republican, and when living in Mansfield was captain of a military company, and was known as Capt. Gurley.

Mr. Harrison Gurley was born in Mansfield, Tolland Co., Conn., Jan. 14, 1815. The first few years of his married life he resided in Hartford and Manchester, Conn.

In the fall of 1855, Mr. Gurley, with his family, moved to Grinnell, Iowa, and number among the pioneer settlers of that state.

In the fall of 1856 he moved from there to New Hampton, which at that time was a bare prairie, with a few shanties and log houses; here he purchased 30 acres of land. New Hampton has since become the county seat of Chickasaw County, and has about two thousand inhabitants, with many nice schools, churches, etc.

Mr. Gurley, soon after his arrival in New Hampton, engaged in general merchandising, which he followed for twenty years, and since that time he has been engaged in banking and agricultural business.

During Mr. and Mrs. Gurley's first settling in Iowa they endured many hardships and privations, his wife teaching school, while he looked after his store. They were among the first to establish a non-sectarian church there, and have always taken an active part in the business interests of the town.

Mr. Gurley has been a Republican all his life.

LIFE OF DANIEL GURLEY.

Daniel Gurley of Danville, Ill., was born in Rupert, Vt., March 3, 1808. When about eight years old, his parents removed to Sand Bank, Oswego Co., New York, Daniel making the trip barefoot. When seventeen years of age he made a trip West, through Wisconsin, Michigan, and through and beyond the site of Chicago. In his early life he was a Presbyterian, and was always an abolitionist. He was the personal friend of Garrett Smith and William Lloyd Garrison. Mr. Gurley assisted quite a number of fugitive slaves across the line to Canada, where he was free from the hunter's whips and hounds.

He took part in the famous "Jerry Rescue," at Syracuse, N. Y. He left the state of New York in 1862, stopped a short time at Quincy, Michigan, and from there removed to Danville, Ill., in 1864, where he passed the remainder of his life, and engaged successfully in the hide and leather business for a number of years. His life was an open book. He was honorable, temperate, and industrious; had no difficulties with his fellow man; he never sued any one; was a good neighbor and citizen, respected by all.

He was a Spiritualist, and died as he had lived. He was a Mason, and his funeral was conducted by the Masonic fraternity on Tuesday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, from his residence, 312 North Vermillion Street, where his body lay in state from 1 to 5 o'clock, Jan. 15, 1895.

| 353. | FRANCES SALINA, | " Oct. 15, 1839. |

Mr. Joel Gurley, oldest son of Jason Gurley and Susan Bryant, was born in Connecticut. Soon after his marriage he moved with his family to Albany, N. Y., where he engaged in teaching school for a while, and then removed, going by canal and lake, to Chicago, and then to Troy Grove, a few miles from the present city of Ottawa, La Salle Co., Ill., where he lived the remainder of his life.

Mr. Gurley by trade was a stonemason, and it is said his equal was not to be found in La Salle County (not in rapidity, for he moved slowly when at work). When he took a job to put in a foundation for a building he did good work, true work, and square work. A foundation laid by him for a Mr. Miller at Troy Grove more than half a century ago is as sound and perfect as when first laid.

Mr. Gurley was also an expert hunter, as well as an expert stonemason, and as the deer and prairie chicken were plenty there in those days, they helped largely to supply his family with food.

| 361. | FLORENCE ARIZONA, | " June 4, 1863; died Aug. 22, 1863. |

Hon. John Addison Gurley was born at East Hartford, Conn., Dec. 9, 1813, and at an early age he became a Universalist minister, and his first church was in Methuen, Essex Co., Mass., in 1835, where he resided until 1839, when he moved to Cincinnati, Ohio, and there he preached five years, and also owned and edited the Universalist paper, "The Star and Sentinel."

In 1843, his health not being good, he disposed of his paper and bought a beautiful farm near Cincinnati, where he removed and soon regained his health.

In 1858 he was nominated and elected to Congress from the second Ohio District, and this office he held two terms, and, in 1862, was again the choice of the Republican party, but was defeated.

After the expiration of Mr. Gurley's second term in Congress, people who owned gold mines in Arizona Territory went to President Lincoln and urged him to appoint Mr. Gurley governor of that territory, as the Apache Indians were making trouble there and had driven the miners out. As Mr. Gurley had been a warm personal friend of President Lincoln while in Congress, and knowing him to be a man well qualified to fill the position, he made the appointment. But, unfortunately, after Mr. Gurley had made all arrangements and preparations to go, he died on the day he was to have started to fill the appointment.

Hon. John A. Gurley was a strong advocate of temperance, and often spoke on the subject in temperance meetings. Politically, he was a Democrat up to the time of the Kansas and Missouri outrages, when he became disgusted with the Democratic party, and joined the Republican party, and when he was nominated for Congress, many Democrats voted for him, believing him to be the best man, and thereby he won his election.

Mr. Gurley was a man admired and respected by all who gained his acquaintance. He was a commissioned colonel in Indiana Legion, and was on General Fremont's staff at the time of the Kirby Smith and Morgan raids. He went to St. Louis, but, after seeing what kind of a man General Fremont was and what he was required to do, he resigned and returned home. When the war broke out he wished to go, but his friends gathered around him and said "No, we want you to be a member of Congress; you can do the most good there; he said, "All right. I want to be where I can do the most good to my fellow men and my country."

Clarence Bryant,	" Mar. 18, 1868.

Mr. Joseph Hall was born in Oxford County, state of New York, March 6, 1816, and on his mother's side was related to Thurlow Weed.

In 1833 Mr. Hall came West and settled in Ottawa, La Salle Co., Ill., and began business, being a blacksmith by trade, which he continued for some years, and later bought a packet line on the Illinois and Michigan Canal. He subsequently sold out this business, and moved on to a farm six miles from Ottawa, where he lived until his death.

Sarah Bryant Gurley was born at East Hartford, Conn., May 27, 1823, and at the age of eleven years moved with her parents to Troy Grove, Ill. (near Ottawa), where she, later, taught school, and was also post-mistress. She was a great favorite of the old Indian chief, Shabloua, who was friendly to the whites.

[The Daily Picayune, New Orleans, Sunday, Nov. 10, 1889.]

THE BAR OF NEW ORLEANS — JOHN WARD GURLEY, SR.,
Assistant Attorney of the United States for the Eastern District of Louisiana.

Mr. J. W. Gurley, Sr., the present assistant attorney of the United States for the eastern district of Louisiana, is a native of Baton Rouge, La. His father, Henry H. Gurley, a native of Connecticut, settled in this state during the territorial government, while a mere youth, and, after being admitted to the bar, made Baton Rouge his home.

From 1823 to 1831 he represented the Baton Rouge district in Congress, and in 1830 resigned his seat in consequence of the death of his wife.

He was a member of the House of Representatives at the time Andrew Jackson failed of an election by the people, and the result had to be determined by the House. Louisiana's popular vote had been cast for Jackson, but only one Democratic Congressman had been elected out of three.

Edward Livingston of the city district voted for Jackson, while Mr. Gurley, with Mr. Brent of the Red River District, father of Gen. J. L. Brent, the distinguished soldier and planter, the Whig members, voted for John Quincy Adams, and aided in securing his election. When Mr. Gurley retired from Congress, the Governor of the State appointed him Judge of the District Court for the Baton Rouge District, which position he held up to the day of his death in 1832.

The subject of this sketch, John W. Gurley, was named after his uncle, who at the time of his death, in a duel, in this city, in 1808, was and had for some years been Attorney-General of the then Territory of Orleans.

Mr. Gurley received his primary education in the town of Baton Rouge, and was afterwards sent to Jefferson College, Pennsylvania, where he completed his collegiate studies. In 1841 he came to this city and read law in the office of the late Judge Thomas Gibbs Morgan, and having graduated, was appointed in 1849, on the resignation of Edmund Randolph, Clerk of the Circuit Court of the United States, by Judges E. H. McCaleb and John McKinley; and on the death of Judge McKinley he was retained in that position by his successor, the late Judge John A. Campbell.

On the secession of the state, the functions of the court were suspended, and shortly afterwards the District Court of the Confederate States was organized, with Hon. E. Warren Moise as judge. Mr. Gurley was appointed and served as clerk of that court during its short-lived existence.

During the latter part of the war Mr. Gurley was associated in the practice of the law with the late Edward Briggs and Levi Pierce, and subsequently with Samuel Flower, Esq., the present assistant treasurer of the United States in this city.

In 1869 Judge P. H. Morgan was appointed United States Attorney, and offered Mr. Gurley the position of assistant in his office, which he accepted, and has continued to act in the same capacity under the succeeding incumbents of that office as follows: A. B. Long, J. R. Beckwith, George S. Lacey, A. H. Leonard, Charles Parlange, and William Grant, Esqs.

He is also one of the masters in chancery of the United States Circuit Court, and in the discharge of his duties has had occasion from time to time, under orders of reference from the court, to report on many cases of importance and difficulty.

In 1872 an effort was made by the bar of this city to obtain the best and most suitable material for the bench, and Mr. Gurley was nominated a candidate for the judgeship of the Sixth District Court, but was defeated at the election.

In 1850 he married Miss Rosamond Richards of this city.

The name of Gurley is borne with honor by several prominent gentlemen of this city. They are worthy sons of a distinguished sire.

Phineas Densmore Gurley, D.D., an eminent Presbyterian minister, was born Nov. 12, 1816, at Hanilton, Madison Co., N. Y., and died Sept. 30, 1868, in Washington, D. C.

During his infancy his parents removed to Parishville, St. Lawrence County, N. Y., where, at the age of fifteen, he joined the Presbyterian Church, and soon after entered Union College, where he graduated in 1837, with the highest honors of his class.

The same year he entered the Theological Seminary at Princeton, N. J., and graduated there in September, 1840, having been licensed to preach the April preceding at Cold Spring, N. Y. He accepted straightway a call to the First Presbyterian Church of Indianapolis, Ind., from which a strong minority had separated and organized a second church (New School), with Rev. Henry Ward Beecher as pastor.

In this place he labored for nine years with great success, the church being blessed with revivals and largely increased numbers; but, in 1850, for the benefit of the health of his family, he removed to Dayton, Ohio, where for four years a like success attended his ministry, as pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in that city.

In 1854, yielding to the wishes of his brethren, he accepted the pastorate of the F Street Presbyterian Church in Washington, D. C., with which, in 1859, the Second Presbyterian Church of that city united, and Dr. Gurley remained until his death pastor of the united body, worshiping in a new edifice, and called the New York Avenue Church. He was elected Chaplain to the United States Senate in 1859, and was the pastor of several presidents of the United States, among them of Mr. Lincoln, during the sad, but exciting scenes of whose dying moments, he was present. The following incident which then occurred illustrates forcibly the spirit and power of his Gospel ministrations:

When the patriot president had ceased to breathe, Mr. Stanton, Secretary of War, turning to Mr. Gurley, said, "Doctor, will you say something?" After a brief pause, Dr. Gurley, addressing the weeping relatives and sympathizing friends, replied, "Let us talk with God," and, kneeling, offered "a most touching and impressive prayer, which, even in that dark hour of gloom, lighted up with sunshine every sorrowing heart." Dr. Gurley was a member of the General Assembly (Old School) in 1866, and chairman of its judicial committee; was made moderator of the General Assembly held in 1867; was chosen a member of the committee of fifteen appointed to confer with a like committee of the New-School Assembly on the subject of a re-union of the two Presbyterian bodies in the United States, and "was the author of the amendments to the basis of union adopted by the joint committee in Philadelphia, and subsequently adopted by both assemblies."

His health failed in 1867, and, after vainly seeking its restoration in rest and change of scene, he returned to die among his people.

Great earnestness and singleness of purpose, with an ever active zeal for the glory of God and the salvation of souls, characterized his life.

See Memorial Sermon on Dr. Gurley, by W. E. Schenck, D. D. (Washington, D. C., 1869), and New York Observer, Oct. 8, 1868. (J. W. M.)

LINCOLN SAVED HIM TWICE.

Then he Apologized to the Young Man's Father for His Own Impatience.

The Rev. Dr. P. D. Gurley was the minister in charge of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, Washington, D. C., during Lincoln's administration. Dr. Gurley was Lincoln's pastor, and in many matters his confidential adviser, a post he was admirably fitted to fill, being a strong, robust, honest personality, and a man of sweet disposition, great ability, and excellent judgment. During the meeting of the first General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church after the war, which convened in St. Louis, Dr. Gurley was a delegate, was one day the guest of Rev. Dr. Niccols, in whose church the assembly met, and the following anecdote of Lincoln was related by Dr. Gurley at dinner, in the presence of a number of friends, among whom was Mr. D. H. Mitchell, who tells this incident in the Independent: "Soon after the outbreak of hostilities a hot-blooded fire-eating young man, a son of members of Dr. Gurley's church, made his way through our lines and enlisted in the Confederate army. The fortunes of war threw him into our hands as a prisoner.

"It was deemed best to make an example of him, and he was consequently court-martialed and sentenced to be shot. Dr. Gurley interested himself in the young man's behalf, and secured a commutation of the sentence. A short time after the father of the boy came to Dr. Gurley and solicited his aid to obtain a pardon. Dr. Gurley strongly advised against the effort. He pointed out that the young man's life had been saved by the President, and that it would be extremely unwise and imprudent to apply for a pardon so soon. The father replied that he felt so himself, but that his wife took on so about her son that he feared she would lose her mind if something were not done. 'I must,' said he, 'make the attempt on his mother's account. It is better to fail than not to try.' Consequently, Dr. Gurley signed the petition for a pardon and the father took it to President Lincoln. When the father made known his errand, the President became very much excited and fiercely said, 'I saved the life of your son after he had been condemned to be shot; and now you come here so soon, when you know

I am overwhelmed with care and anxiety, asking for his pardon. You should have been content with what I have done. Go, and if you annoy me any more I shall feel it to be my duty to consider whether I ought not to recall what I have already done.' A few days after the President sent for the father, apologized for the way he had spoken to him, and, to his utter astonishment, handed him a pardon. Not long after, and before knowing what had transpired, Dr. Gurley met the President. Having transacted his business, he was about to go, when Mr. Lincoln said, 'By the way, Doctor, you signed the petition for Mr. — son's pardon, didn't you?' The doctor replied that he had done so, but explained that he had advised against making the application at that time, and that he was induced to sign it only by the statement of the father that he feared his wife would lose her mind if something were not done to relieve her. The President then remarked: 'Well, Mr. — came to me with the petition. It made me very angry, and I dismissed him roughly. Afterwards I felt so ashamed of myself for having lost my temper that I made out a pardon for the man and gave it to him.' And then, after a pause, and with a broad smile, he added: 'Ah, doctor! these wives of ours have the inside track on us, don't they?'"

DEATH OF GEORGE G. GURLEY.

George G. Gurley, supervisor of Malone, died at his home in this village of pneumonia, complicated with heart ailment, on Friday evening, March 20th, aged nearly 66 years. He was sick only about a week.

Deceased was born Aug. 19, 1825, in Hopkinton, St. Lawrence county, in which vicinity he made his home until 1851, when he removed to Chateaugay, where his sturdy common sense, sagacious judgment, correct living, and the conscientiousness which early in life marked all his dealings and which continued to the end a manifest attribute of the man soon made him one of the most influential and respected citizens of the town. He became station agent of the O. & L. C. R. R. there, and in 1861 was appointed deputy collector of customs. He also dealt in produce and lumber. In 1863 he was nominated by the Union party for sheriff, and received the largest majority of any man on the ticket. Chateaugay was then a rock-ribbed Democratic town, and yet he carried it by eighteen majority. It is needless to say that he made a most excellent sheriff. Upon the completion of his term he entered into the stove and tin business in Malone, and was afterwards interested in the dry goods trade for a time; but of late years he has had no active commercial connections — his trustworthiness and conspicuously sound judgment having inclined many to devolve upon him the settlement and management of their estates, so that this work, with the care of his own affairs, fully occupied his time.

In 1886, when a peculiar situation regarding our politics had developed, and long-continued clamor and persistent misrepresentation threatened Republican supremacy, Mr. Gurley was chosen by common consent to head the Republican ticket and lead the fight. Only the most earnest entreaty won from him finally a consent to accept the honor, and he was elected by a majority which was the largest the town had given in years. He has been successively re-elected every year since then, and his work upon the board has been all that any citizen or taxpayer could desire. Mr. Gurley was also at one time president of the village, and while there was nothing of parade or striving for effect in his administration, the public work was carefully attended to and substantially and thoroughly done.

The record of the life that has gone from us, as regards its official and business phases, is thus seen to require few words for its recital. Mr. Gurley was not a man who sought prominence or put himself forward in any public undertaking. It would not be difficult to recall scores in our community, journeying by his side during the past thirty years, who have filled a larger place in the public eye, and moved more conspicuously in local enterprises, but of men whose death every citizen would feel to be a calamity and a personal bereavement, there are few in Malone — perhaps none — who could be compared with George G. Gurley. His influence, his work, his achievements, were in the office rather than in the public assembly. In counsel, in quiet effort to promote desired ends, in the tender sympathy which distress seeks and finds so welcome, in extending the aid which embarrassed men are glad to gain, he stood almost alone. He had a rare faculty of attracting men and attaching them to him. And well might this be so, for, as a friend who had been the beneficiary of his forbearance and assistance expressed it, “He was always doing something, and helping some one every day of his life.” Among his papers worthless notes have been found, in small sums each, which aggregate thousands of dollars. They are not the testimony of business mistakes, but the proofs that distress always found in him a helper, and that his aid was extended in the most delicate way.

His nature was essentially a sunshiny one, and he was always ready to turn from any business which did not require immediate attention for a social hour with those whose companionship was agreeable. The grasp of his hand was vigorous, the ring of his voice hearty, the quality of his friendship pure and true.

No community has many men who hold in it the place that Mr. Gurley sustained in Malone. Every one respected him, trusted him, and was attached to him; and all hearts are heavy that he moves no more among us.

Mr. Gurley married Helen Hoit, daughter of Jonathan and Louisa P. Hoit, of Chateaugay, in 1858, and, though no children ever blessed the union, their life was singularly harmonious and happy. Mrs. Gurley survives him, and is bowed under the double bereavement within two days of an aged mother and a devoted and beloved husband. The sympathy and condolence of a people who appreciated the worth of him who is gone attends her in the hour of her mourning. — The Malone, N. Y., Palladium, Thursday, March 26, 1891.

JOHN EDGAR GURLEY, son of Zenas H. and Margaret (" Bell " Hickey) Gurley, was born April 24, 1838. He received his early education at Elizabeth, Jo Daviess Co.,

Ill., and in district schools in Wisconsin, finishing at Lombard University, Galesburg, Ill.

Mr. Gurley commenced the study of law at once, after leaving college, in the office of M. Hollister, Shullsburgh, Wis., and was admitted to the bar in the spring of 1862, in that state.

In August, 1862, he enlisted a company of men, who were mustered into the United States service Oct. 18, 1862, as Company C, 33d Reg., W. V., and left the state for the field of action the following month on the 12th instant, reaching Memphis, Tenn., the 16th, and assigned to a brigade in General Laumon's division, of General Sherman's wing of the "Army of the Tennessee," took part in the movement of General Grant towards Jackson, Miss., in the fall of 1862, fighting at Coldwater and other places.

On the night of the 4th of June, 1863, before Vicksburg, an attack was made upon the enemy's rifle pits near Hall's Ferry road. Company C, under Captain Gurley, and K, under Lieut. Shea, with an impetuous charge, carried the rifle pits, and the enemy fled into his main works. Capt. Gurley, with his command, was some forty days before Vicksburg, sharing in the various encounters, and was honored with the lead of a number of charges. After the fall of Vicksburg he was placed on the staff of the 4th division, commanded by Gen. Laumon, and took part in that terrible, but unfortunate, charge in the second attack of Jackson, Miss. For giving this order to charge Gen. Laumon was relieved of the command of the division, but, in fairness, it should be said that Gen. Laumon evidently had been directed by his superior. Some writers who were officers in the army compared this charge to that of the "Light Brigade," at Balaklava.

Capt. Gurley continued an active member of the staff of the 4th division, 17th army corps; was with him when Gen. Gresham was wounded the 21st of July, 1864, and also the day when they fought the battle of July 22d, before Atlanta, occupying the ground known as Bald Hill. Upon this occasion he won his "eagles," as follows: During the night and forenoon of the 22d reports came in of noises, as of marching armies, heard in the woods and brush to the south and east. Gen. Giles A. Smith, who commanded, did not believe it could be infantry, and that officer was considerably nettled over these reports. Finally, he sent Capt. Gurley to make examination and report. That officer did so; and, hearing the infantry marching in the woods, yet not seeing them, he mounted his horse, and, riding back to his command, ordered two regiments who lay to the east of the main body of the division into line of battle, ready to receive the enemy. He did this upon his own motion, without orders from the general commanding. When he reached headquarters, the General and residue of the staff were mounted. He reported, "infantry in large numbers, and will be upon you in a few minutes." This the General did not then believe, but felt sure it must be cavalry, and was quite angry when his attention was called to the fact that two of his regiments were falling into line of battle in obedience to a command from his subordinate officer, not directed by himself, and, turning to Capt. Gurley, he said, "Captain, if they are infantry you are all right, if not, you are a ruined man."

The General was afraid his military record might be injured by showing so much concern over cavalry, but the question was soon settled, as the enemy emerged from the brush and charged in the rear of the division, coming on double quick, several columns deep, filling the air with deadly missiles and that rebel yell. Turning to the General, Capt. Gurley said, "Are they infantry?" To which he replied, "Yes, Captain, and lots of them; go take command of those two regiments, lead them into the fight, check the enemy for a few minutes, till I get our men in line, then fall back to the main body." Captain Gurley executed this order in the face of an overpowering foe and galling fire, then fell back as directed and fought with his comrades till night, maintaining their ground.

He lost one or two horses, shot from under him during the battle. For this act of ordering those regiments into line of battle, he, of course, was court-martialed, but, as it was the means which saved the division from surprise and, doubtless, great loss of life, he was promoted to the rank of colonel as a reward of merit, in which capacity he served till the close of the war, marching from Atlanta to the sea, then to Washington, and back to Louisville, Ky., where he was mustered out October, 1865.

Colonel John E. Gurley, at the close of the war, returned to the practice of law at Platteville, Grant Co., Wis., forming a co-partnership with Paine & Carter, an established law firm of that town. Col. Gurley was especially gifted as an advocate and orator, a man of great generosity, and had many admirers. In the summer of 1868 he took a severe cold, and the effects of his army life consummated his demise, which occurred April 2, 1869, aged 31 years, unmarried.

He died in full hope of life through Christ, and is buried in the family lot near Sandwich, Ill.

Zenas Hovey Gurley of Lamoni, Iowa, was born in Hancock Co., Ill., Feb. 24, 1842. He received his education in the common schools, and by his close attention to his studies he was enabled to teach school at the age of 19 years.

After he became to manhood he married Miss Grace Robinson, and has since resided in the town where he now lives. He was instrumental in breaking up the Mormons at Salt Lake City, Utah, going to Washington, D. C., where he appeared before President Arthur, the House of Representatives, and the Senate, for the passage of the "Edmonds anti-Polygamy Bill," which passed, and Utah became a state.

In 1880 he denounced his Democratic policy of state rights and free trade, and became a staunch Republican, and supported Garfield for the presidency.

In 1893 he was elected by the Republican party of Decatur Co., Iowa, to the 25th General Assembly, and in 1895 was re-elected to fill the same office in the 26th General Assembly. He was chairman of the committee on Claims, and a member on several other committees, all of which he filled with honor. He was an able debater on the floor of the House, commanding the attention of his fellow members. Mr. Gurley is a strong advocate for temperance, and a member of the Masonic fraternity.

Mr. Gurley's general business is insurance and real estate agency.

George Washington Gurley of Sandwich, De Kalb Co., Ill., was born near Elizabeth, Jo Daviess Co., in the same state, Dec. 1, 1847. His early life was spent in Lafayette Co., Mo., and at Galesburg, Ill. He attended school at Mount Carroll, Ill., earning his board and books, etc. Commenced teaching school at the age of seventeen years, and taught two years, then entered a store in Sandwich, and after clerking several years at Sandwich, Ill., Mexico, Missouri, and Blanchardsville, Wis., he located at Sandwich, Ill., and entered the mercantile business under the firm name of Pratt, Goodman & Gurley. In 1882 sold out his interest in the business, and entered the employ of the Sandwich Manufacturing Company, traveling for two years as collector, and then entered the office of said company, and took charge of their collection department, which position he now occupies (1896).

He is a member of the Congregational Church of Sandwich, is connected with the Masonic fraternity, and an American citizen, which he considers a greater "honor than to have been a Roman." He has a photo of the Gurley "Coat of Arms," which was presented to him by one of the Gurleys while on a business trip to Caliope, Iowa, which he prizes very highly. He is a strong advocate for Prohibition, and that the only way to solve the great social question of the day is to grant unto women equal rights in the eyes of the law.

Mr. Edwin Hickey Gurley was born in the township of Walwick, Lafayette Co., Wisconsin, April 10, 1852. When at the age of six years, his parents moved to Illinois, near Galesburg, and afterwards to Sandwich, in the same state, where he attended the common school, completing his education at the high school at Galesburg, Ill.

In 1873 he went to Nevada, and returned in 1875 to his home in Sandwich, Ill., but soon went to Decatur Co., Iowa, where he made a profession of religion. Here he followed school teaching winters and worked at farming summers.

Mr. Gurley was ordained a minister for Christ in 1878, and preached Sundays. In 1881 he was ordained an elder, and went to Ontario, and afterwards labored in Michigan, Chatham, London, and Corinth.

Mr. Gurley has been employed by several different firms as salesman in Lamoni, Iowa, and King City, Missouri, all of whom he served with much credit.

Mr. Gurley made Decatur Co., Iowa, his home from 1875 to 1889. He then moved with his family to Calpella, Mendocino Co., California, and soon engaged in the mercantile business for himself, where he now resides (1896), carrying on a good business, and, in connection with his mercantile business, he also preaches the "Gospel of Christ" Sundays, for which he does without any stipulated price, believing it to be his duty to Christ and to mankind.

(Hillmanville, Conn.)

Albert Ebenezer Gurley was born in Mansfield, Tolland Co., Conn., April 15, 1838, received his education in the common schools of the town, and Wilbraham Academy, at Wilbraham, Mass., and when not attending school in early life, was engaged most of the time in the silk mill of P. W. Turner & Co., where the manufacturing of sewing silk, twist, etc., was extensively carried on. At the age of 18 years I took a trip West, stopping a few months in Wyoming and Genesee Counties, N. Y., then going to Wisconsin, where I was engaged on a railroad starting at Warren, Ill., and terminating at that time at Mineral Point City, Wis., working at laying track and civil engineering for one year, then going to Iowa, where I worked at railroading a few months, at that time running from Keokuk to Bentonsport (1858), and during the winter of 1858-9 worked in a hotel at Lawrence, near Farmington. In the spring of 1859 I went down into Missouri, and during the summer was bookkeeper for a steam saw-mill on the Missouri River, near Waverly, and returned home to Mansfield, Conn., in the fall, and soon after went to work for P. W. Turner as overseer in his silk mill at Turnerville (Hebron), Conn., where I remained for eighteen months. During this time I was married.

I then moved (in the spring of 1861), with my family, to the town of Harrison, Calumet Co., Wis., where I tried farming. After living there about two and one-half years, I gave up farming there and moved with my family to Denmark, Lee Co., Iowa, taught school during the winter, then moved with my family back to Connecticut, and purchased a farm in Lebanon, where I carried on farming for about eighteen months, then sold it and moved to Mansfield, where I started a silk mill at Mansfield (Hollow) for Mr. Morton of Boston; he soon sold out to Bottom, Swift & Co.. After remaining in their employ for about 18 months I moved with my family back to Lebanon, where I engaged in farming for 14 years, then I sold out, and moved with my family back to Mansfield (Spring Hill), where I purchased property and ran a grocery store and post-office a few years.

In the winter of 1887-8 I took a trip to southern California, stopping at San Diego, Colton, Riverside, and other places, returning in the spring of 1888.

In the year 1889 I purchased a building lot in Willimantic, Conn., and built the residence where I now reside, retiring from all public business, except this genealogy work, which I am now engaged in (1897).

MARY ADELAIDE GURLEY, daughter of Ebenezer R. and Julia Ann (Gardiner) Gurley of Mansfield, Conn., married Ralph Wright Storrs of the same town, Nov. 26, 1861.

Mrs. Mary A. Storrs died of consumption, Nov. 19, 1896, age 55 years.

Children of Ralph W. Storrs and Mary A. Gurley, his wife:

Eckley Raynor,	born Oct. 19, 1866.
Lewellyn Jennings,	" May 22, 1868.
Marion,	" Aug. 3, 1874.

Judge Ralph W. Storrs, son of Edwin and Laura (Wright) Storrs of Mansfield, Conn., was born July 14, 1839. He received his education in the common schools of the town. He was a nine-months volunteer in the 22d Conn., in the late rebellion; since that time he has been extensively engaged in farming, until within a few years, he gave it into the management of his son, Lewellyn J. Storrs.

Judge Storrs has represented his town in the Legislature, and has held every important office within the gift of the town, holding the office of town clerk for sixteen years, and the office of judge of probate for nearly the same length of time, which office he now holds (1896), and is re-elected for another term.

WILLIAM GURLEY, of Troy, N. Y., was married to Maria Ruth Kenney, daughter of Cyrus and Lydia (Thompson) Kenney of the same town, June 24, 1847.

Mr. William Gurley died Jan. 10, 1887, age 65 years.

His widow, Mrs. Maria R. Gurley, died Feb. 17, 1894, age 67 years.

WILLIAM GURLEY.

Children of William Gurley and Maria R. Kenney, his wife:

- 485. CLARA AUGUSTA, born June 2, 1849.
- 486. ESTHER MARIA, " Feb. 8, 1853.
- 487. WILLIAM, " May 20, 1855; died in infancy.
- 488. LEWIS WARREN, " Sept. 16, 1857; single.
- 489. MARY MILLER, " Jan. 4, 1860.

William Gurley was born in the city of Troy, N. Y., March 16, 1821, and was educated in the private schools until he entered the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, then, as now, an excellent scientific school, from which he graduated with high credit in 1839.

After following the business of a surveyor for some years he turned his attention to the manufacture of the instruments, with whose use he was familiar, learning the business in the shop of Mr. Oscar Hanks in the city of Troy, and soon became master of the business. After five years' preparation he entered into partnership with Mr. Jonas H. Phelps, in the year 1845, conducting the same business in a larger way for the next seven years, when the firm was changed by the withdrawal of Mr. Phelps, and the accession of his younger brother, Lewis E. Gurley.

The new firm, W. & L. E. Gurley, were for nearly thirty-five years actively engaged in the same line, finding an ever-widening circle of customers in almost every part of the world, and the same name is still maintained, though the senior partner has long since passed away.

Mr. Gurley was ever active in all enterprises which tended in his opinion to increase the welfare and prosperity of his native place, and a few years of his mature life passed free from the cares of public office in educational and religious institutions.

His views of political questions were clear and positive, and yet he always refused to seek any office until constrained by the wishes of his best friends and the conviction of his duty as a citizen. He served as alderman of his native ward for four years, and as fire commissioner for twice as long, inaugurating the greatly improved system, now so generally approved in all our larger cities.

In November, 1866, after a spirited canvass, he was elected member of Assembly for the city of Troy, and gave to his position the same devotion as to other places of public trust, but gladly retiring at the end of his term to the sweets of domestic life.

He served on commissions appointed by the United States Government on the selection of meters, and for securing a site for the public building in Troy.

His warm interest in education led him to take an active part in the preservation and prosperity of the Troy Female Seminary School, in the cause of the higher education of American women, and probably no single achievement of his life gave him greater satisfaction than the successful accomplishment of this great work.

He was also warmly interested in the success and progress of the Rensselaer Polytechnic School, being long a member of its board of trustees, and vice-president at the time of his decease.

A member of the Baptist Church, he gave freely of his time and means to not only his own church, but to every religious and charitable enterprise.

His domestic life was an ideal one; his home was always the center of his highest enjoyment, and happy were they who were permitted to enjoy its hospitalities.

Mr. Gurley had to an unusual degree the confidence and respect of the whole community, and was ever ready to aid by his wise counsel and substantial aid those whom he deemed worthy his encouragement.

The first impairment of his general health was caused by his being thrown from a sleigh in February, 1884, when he was dragged some distance on the icy ground, sustaining severe injuries in his head, from which he never recovered.

In 1885 he had a dangerous attack of pneumonia, and, barely rallying from it, spent the rest of the year in greater quiet, making a journey to Nassau and Cuba in the spring of 1886, from which he greatly profited. Notwithstanding his apparent restoration to health, he was taken seriously ill on Dec. 16th, and though attended by the most skillful physicians, gradually failed in strength until, at midnight, Monday, Jan. 10, 1887, he quietly and painlessly passed away.

494. MARY LOUISA, born Jan. 19, 1880.
 495. EDITH BROWN, " July 3, 1883.

LEWIS E. GURLEY.

The subject of this sketch was born in Troy, N. Y., Dec. 30, 1826, and received his early education in the best private schools of the city.

He was a diligent student and ardently desiring a thorough intellectual training, pursued the course of scientific study in the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, and in 1847 entered Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., where he graduated with credit in 1851.

He had previously learned the business of an instrument-maker in the shop of Jonas H. Phelps, later of Phelps and Gurley, and largely supported himself while in college by working at his trade on Saturdays and during the vacations.

In February, 1852, on the retirement of Mr. Phelps with his elder brother, William, he formed a copartnership for the manufacture of surveyors' instruments, and thus began a delightful association not only in business, but in all benevolent work in which the brothers were most happily united, until the death of William Gurley, in January, 1887.

Mr. Gurley was elected a school commissioner in 1855.

and gave much time and thought to the improvement of the public schools of his native city, for twelve successive years, being also president of the board in his last term of service. Subsequently he became deeply interested in the effort his brother and others were making to save and perpetuate the Emma Willard Seminary, a pioneer school in the education of American girls, and especially endeared to the brothers as the institution in which their own sister, Clarissa, had received her education, and which they felt to be an essential element in the culture of other girls in the city of their love and home.

After the purchase of the Seminary it was continued for twenty years as a successful day school, but labored under the disadvantage of being located in an old and decayed building, forbidding a further growth.

Mr. Gurley, therefore, conceived the design of a modern structure, which should not only serve as a house for the school, but also for a memorial of his deceased sister and brother. The result was the erection of a beautiful building of granite, with brown stone trimmings, completed in 1890, and appropriately inscribed as the Gurley Memorial Hall.

To the dedication, on June 5, 1891, came the old graduates of the school to rejoice over the new life upon which it was entering, and to share with many citizens in the joy of the bright prospects of the future.

So great was the effect of this good example that in less than two years afterwards the same alumni and citizens were again gathered to celebrate the addition of two noble and costly buildings to the rapidly growing facilities of the school, making an equipment almost unequaled in any other part of the country.

Mr. Gurley, besides being president of the Seminary, is also a trustee of Colgate University, and other institutions as well, in different parts of the country.

He has been for more than forty years superintendent of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Sunday-school, and for about half that period president of the Rensselaer County Sunday-school Union.

Passionately fond of rural life, he has long cultivated a farm a few miles out of the city, and has regularly resided with his family at Sunnyhill, his country home, during the summer and early autumn, for over thirty years.

For several years also he was president of the County Agricultural Society, and thus has a large and happy circle of friends among the farmers of his vicinity.

At the death of his brother, he was elected to the presidency of the Union National Bank of Troy, which office he still retains.

Though ever enthusiastic in the conduct of his own chosen business, Mr. Gurley has always retained his love for the natural sciences, astronomy, etc., and finds his best relaxation in literature, history, and the companionship of the best authors in all branches of learning.

He has been active in all public enterprises and interests relating to the welfare of his native city, and is ever ready to give his time and means to every work which serves to elevate his fellow men.

Warmly attached to his own church, he has cheerfully assisted others of every name in his vicinity, and has been active and earnest in the work of the Young Men's Christian Association.

For over fifty years he has been devoted to his business, and loves daily to take his place among his workmen at the bench, with whom his relations have always been most intimate and cordial.

Always enjoying social life and the sweet companionship of intimate friends, Mr. Gurley has yet ever found his home the happiest place in all the world, and there we now take our leave of him with the wish that he may long be permitted to enjoy the closing days of a well-spent and busy life.

303.

HARRIET MARIA GURLEY, daughter of Lucius Gurley of Mansfield, Conn., married Samuel Cross of the same town, Feb. 1, 1848.

Mr. Samuel Cross died suddenly while going from his grist-mill to his home, Nov. 16, 1876, age 53 years.

Children of Samuel Cross and Harriet M. Gurley, his wife:

Adelaide,	born Sept. 23, 1849.

John F.,	" Mar. 23, 1855.
Wilber L.,	" April 10, 1862.
Agnes ^{M.} ,	" May 5, 1864.

Mr. Cross, in his early life, took a whaling voyage, but, on his return to Mansfield, his native town, he soon married, and he, in company with his father-in-law, Mr. Lucius Gurley, bought the grist, saw, and shingle mill property of Mr. E. R. Gurley at Gurleyville (Mansfield), which they run for many years.

Mr. Cross, although cross by name, was directly the opposite by nature, for no pleasanter spoken man resided within the town. His reputation for honesty as a miller was never questioned or doubted by any one, and his patrons came for many miles around.

Mr. Cross died suddenly while carrying a small quantity of meal from the mill to his home on November 16, 1876. His funeral was largely attended, for his friends were many; and the universal saying was a good and honest man had gone.

LIFE OF JONATHAN F. GURLEY.

Mr. Jonathan F. Gurley was one of the most valued and enterprising business men of Hamilton, N. Y., died of paralysis April 15, 1893, age 66 years.

Mr. Gurley was formerly a native of Mansfield, Conn., and at an early age developed a superior business capacity.

About the year 1850 he came to Hamilton, N. Y., and opened a store for the sale of a comprehensive line of miscellaneous goods, including almost everything in the line of foreign and domestic fancy goods, "Yankee Notions," cutlery, and silverware, books, stationery, etc., which he furnished to the merchants of this and adjoining counties by means of peddling vehicles which he kept on the road.

In 1851 he erected a large and commodious store, which he named "Gothic Hall," where he carried on a large and successful trade for some three years, when he disposed of the same to his brother, Josephus C. Gurley.

In the meantime, in company with the late sheriff, F. F. Stevens, he built and equipped with fine machinery for a silk factory the large building on Union Street, where the manufacture of sewing silk was carried on extensively for two or three years, and until the failure of the raw material from China rendered the business unprofitable, when it was discontinued.

Subsequently Mr. Gurley removed to Muscatine, Iowa, where he engaged in agricultural pursuits for several years. A few years ago he was stricken with paralysis, which incapacitated him for active life, and in 1891 he returned to Hamilton with his family, where he has since resided.

He leaves surviving a widow, a son, and daughter, besides his mother, a brother, and two sisters.

325.

FRANCES BICKNEL GURLEY, daughter of Josephus Gurley and Cornelia Royce (his 2d wife) of Mansfield, Conn., afterwards of Morrisville, N. Y., was twice married: 1st. To Joseph Arnold Wilber of Morrisville, N. Y., May 30, 1855. He died Dec. 21, 1859, age 33 years.

2d marriage, to Elisha C. Topliff of Morrisville, N. Y., March 12, 1867.

Mr. Elisha C. Topliff died Sept. 11, 1892, aged 85 years.

Ella C., born July 10, 1857; died Feb. 24, 1859.

George C., " Aug. 21, 1859.

Children by 2d marriage: None.

Mr. Joseph A. Wilber was a farmer by occupation. He met his death while living at Ripon, Wis., where they moved to in 1857, by his horses taking fright; he was thrown from a load of lumber on his way home and so badly injured that after nine days of intense suffering, he died, Dec. 21, 1859, age 33 years.

Mr. Elisha C. Topliff, occupation, furniture dealer and undertaker. He was a kind and affectionate husband, a member of the Methodist Church for over fifty years, and took a great interest in the church to which he belonged. He was highly honored and esteemed by all who knew him. He departed this life at the advanced age of 85 years.

His widow is still living in Morrisville, N. Y., 1896.

327.

EUNICE ALMIRA GURLEY, daughter of Josephus Gurley and Cornelia Royce (his 2d wife) of Mansfield, Conn., married George E. Conant of the same town April 3, 1851.

Mrs. Eunice A. Conant gave birth to a child, which died, and she soon had spasms and also died, Oct. 7, 1854, at the age of 20 years.

Mr. George E. Conant, of Mansfield, Conn., was born March 20, 1820, and was one of Mansfield's most promising and enterprising young men, whose habits and principles were of the best. He started life in business in company with his brother, Albert, in the manufacturing of sewing silk in Gurleyville, in the town of Mansfield, where they carried on the business for a few years, and then moved their works to Atwoodville, in the same town, where they carried on the business for a few years more, until his health began to fail him, and he was obliged to suspend business for a time. He then went to Morrisville, N. Y., and started in the same business there. He had business which called him to New York city, and from there to Gurleyville, Conn., by which he took a cold and terminated in quick consumption, of which he died suddenly in Gurleyville, April 10, 1856, at the age of 36 years.

He was a kind and affectionate husband, a good neighbor, and a valuable citizen.

Y., July 24, 1835; in 1856 he removed to Toledo, Ohio, where he became a merchant, dealing in hides, leather, etc., to 1874, then he removed to St. Louis, Mo., and from there to Texas, and in 1892 removed from Texas to Chicago, Ill., and went into copartnership with his brother, Nahum Gurley, as "brokers and commission merchants."

Mr. F. D. Gurley was not a man who sought political honors, but he was a man highly esteemed by those of his acquaintance, and especially those with whom he did business, and his sudden death has cast a gloom and regret over his many relatives and friends.

Mr. Gurley's secret marriage to Mrs. Mary B. McCallam, as her fourth husband, was a very sad and unfortunate affair. Her first husband, Mr. F. D. Chalfant, she married in 1866; he died in 1870. Her second husband, Mr. W. Arbuckle, died June, 1874. Her third husband she married in 1875; he died in 1890; his life was insured for $8,000, and was payable to her, and she received the money. She married Mr. Franklin D. Gurley in Wisconsin, May 10, 1896, and he died suddenly, April 23, 1897. His life was insured for $7,000, payable to her, and she had also got a deed of his 640 acres of land in Randall Co., Texas. This last marriage was kept a secret until after Mr. Gurley's death.

Mr. Nahum Gurley has made application to Judge Ball to have his brother's body exhumed, which has been done, and the matter is now in the hands of the court for investigation, May, 1897. Court proceedings dismissed.

PART THIRD.

Of the ancestry of Rev. William Gurley the following account is given from his own pen: "As to my ancestors I can give but little information. My father died when I was a child; consequently, I was deprived from obtaining intelligence from that quarter.

"At one time, when I was in Dublin, I called at the heraldry office to find, if possible, the family coat of arms and the original name from those ancient records. I ascertained that one James Gurley came over from Scotland in the year 1100. Our coat of arms was a lion rampant; the crest of a lion's head and neck; field, pearl or argent; but no motto.

"My immediate ancestors were honest and industrious, and of good repute. My father held a respectable post in the naval department. He and all his relatives adhered to the Church of England.

"My mother's maiden name was Chamberlain. Her parents were of the Society of Friends.

"Two of my brothers and two of my sisters were older than myself. I had but one younger brother."

If the above is correct and true, the author of this book does not see how this branch of the Gurley family can be descendants of Ingleram de Gurley, who accompanied William the Lion from Normandy, France, to Scotland, A. D.

WILLIAM GURLEY OF WEXFORD, IRELAND.

11. DEMPSTER BEATTY, " Oct. 31, 1821, at Milan, Ohio; died at Milan, O., Oct. 18, 1835.

Rev. William Gurley was born in Wexford, Ireland, March 12, 1757. In his youth there can be but little said, his father dying when he was but eight years old, leaving all the care of bringing up and educating the family of six children to his widowed mother. Before he was fifteen years old he had acquired a fine library of choice books — history, biography, romance. Robinson Crusoe, Gulliver among the Lilliputians, and Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress were read by him with equal interest and avidity.

At the age of sixteen years he became an apprentice to the silversmith and jewelry business. When he was some thirty years of age he commenced to carry on the business for himself in Wexford, and by his successful business he soon acquired several thousand dollars, which was chiefly invested in stock and wares.

After the suppression of the Irish Catholic rebellion in 1878, Mr. Gurley went to Dublin to purchase stock for resuming his business again. Here he remained for some days at his brother-in-law's, Mr. James Beatty, a merchant in the city. While there news of the arrival of the French at Killala, under General Lambert, reached Wexford, which so frightened Mrs. Gurley that she took her child and servant girl and went to Dublin, where her husband was. After a few weeks Mr. Gurley returned to Wexford and disposed of his property there, and then returned to Dublin. He then moved with his family to Liverpool, England, where he resided for over two years.

In the autumn of 1801 Mr. Gurley, with his family, left Liverpool, England, for New York city, where they arrived after a passage of six weeks, and then went to New London, Conn., where he remained only a short time, and then went to Norwich, Conn., where he established himself in business, and resided for about ten years.

In the fall of 1811 Mr. Gurley, with his family, emigrated to Ohio, having purchased a hundred acres of land of his brother-in-law, Mr. James Beatty of New London, Conn.

It was four o'clock in the afternoon of a pleasant day in September when Mr. Gurley, his wife, and five children entered the wagon bound for the fire lands. It was a long and tedious journey. It was late in October when Mr. Gurley with his family reached the destined place, a settlement of a few families at a spot since called Bloomingville, seven miles south from Sandusky city.

A small cabin on the edge of a prairie was obtained as the temporary residence of the family, and, poor as it was, it was a welcome retreat and shelter to the weary emigrants.

Before spring had thrown its green robe over the prairies Mr. Gurley had erected his house, one mile eastwardly from the present village of Bloomingville. It was sixteen by twenty feet, a story and a half high.

As soon as the puncheon floor had been laid and the wall "chinked," the family took possession.

Mr. Gurley had scarcely got moved into this house when, on the 12th of June of this year, war was declared with England. There was danger of being massacred by the Indians, so they removed to Zanesville, Ohio, where they resided a little over six years.

In the autumn of 1818 he exchanged his farm in Bloomington for one two miles west of Milan, where he removed in February, 1819, and where he continued to reside the remainder of his life.

Rev. William Gurley was a rare and beautiful character. Converted early in life, he became a Methodist and a class-leader. He was afterwards licensed by Rev. John Wesley as a local preacher at Wexford, Ireland. He suffered untold hardships on account of his religion during the Irish Catholic rebellion of 1798. He was in prison several weeks, and twice was sent for to be executed, and at one time was on the fatal bridge where his companions (including one of his brothers) were piked, and the bodies thrown to the river below. He escaped as by a miracle.

Rev. Mr. Gurley preached the first sermon and organized the first society west of Cleveland, Ohio, at Bloomington, in 1811. Rev. Mr. Gurley continued to preach and teach people the way to Christ all the remainder of his life, and but few men have ever lived that were more honored and respected than was this illustrious man — Rev. William Gurley.

[The author of this book believes that few men ever lived who suffered so many trials and hardships as did this Rev. William Gurley, whose life record is recorded in a book of 258 pages, giving a full account of his life from his birth to his death.]

Rev. James Gurley was born in Dublin, Ireland, Oct. 29, 1800. His mother left him when a babe but six weeks old to be brought up by his Aunt and Uncle Beatty in Dublin. At the age of thirteen he was sent to Wexford Academy to qualify for a midshipman's post in the royal navy, which had been secured for him of the government by his uncle, Mr. James Beatty. But, after being there a short time, this was abandoned, and, April 25, 1815, he embarked for America, and, after a perilous voyage of sixty-nine days, he reached New York city, and went from there to New London, Conn., to his uncle's, Mr. John Beatty, where he remained until fall. Then his uncle accompanied him as far as Cleveland, Ohio, which at that time contained scarcely a dozen houses. Here he put his clothes in a knapsack and started for Zanesville, where, one bright afternoon in October, after a long and tedious journey, he arrived at his parents' house, greatly to their surprise.

Here he soon got a situation as clerk in a general merchandise store, where he remained until he went to learn the cabinet business. But, like most foreign-born, he was anxious to become a landowner, and bought a farm in Fairfield Co., Ohio, where he engaged in farming until 1828, when he entered the Ohio conference of the M. E. Church. When at the age of forty-eight he went to Cincinnati, and was sent from there as missionary among the Indians, where he remained for a while, and then returned to his home in Fairfield Co., Ohio, where he remained for two years. He then removed to a place on the bank of Lake Pepin, Wisconsin, where for a short time he ran a portable steam sawmill, which he took with him. But Mr. Gurley, soon after going out of the lumber business, re-engaged in the missionary work, and traveled along the Northern Pacific Railroad from Duluth to Fargo, and also other places, afterwards establishing societies, forming classes, etc., until his health failed him, and, getting into declining years, he went to Charles City, Iowa, where he spent the remainder of his days.

ABRUPT CLOSE OF THE CAREER OF A REMARKABLE MAN.

[Special telegram to The Blade.]

Sandusky, O., Aug. 10, 1896.—In the death of William D. Gurley, at his home at Bogart, O., Perkins Township loses one of its prominent historic characters. He was born in Norwich, Conn., eighty-five years ago, and brought by his parents, when a babe of only a few months old, into the Ohio wilderness. His long and useful life has been identified with the history of the township, and he has been one of the old landmarks connecting the present with the very beginning of the history of the community in which he has spent his days.

PART FOURTH.

As to this branch of the Gurley family the author has two statements, and being unable to decide which is correct, publishes both.

CAPT. BENJAMIN GURLEY, of Marblehead, Mass., afterwards of the town of Keene, Cheshire Co., N. H. Of his ancestry but little is known, except he was a captain of a merchant vessel at the time of the war of 1776, carrying goods and merchandise to and from foreign countries. When the war began he had his vessel rigged over into a gunboat and fought the British on the water. After the war was over he settled his family in the town of Keene, Cheshire Co., New Hampshire, and returned to France, where he had a considerable sum of money deposited in a bank. They informed him at the bank that they did not have the money ready to pay him then, but told him to come at a stated time and his money would be ready for him. Nothing further is known in relation to his getting this money, as he died by poisoning on his way home (in July or August, 1786), and his body was taken to his family by his mate, Robert Swan.

[The above account is as given by Mr. Alfred Chester Gurley as told him by his father, Mr. Benjamin Gurley, No. 4, and as told him by his mother, Mrs. Betsey Gurley, widow of Capt. Benjamin Gurley.]

Three Gurley brothers came from England, one bearing the name of Oliver.

Of these three one went south.

One went to New York.

One stayed in New England.

*Nicholas Gurley (think given name was Nicholas) was born at Marblehead (part of Boston), Mass., age not known. But he was a captain of a vessel having on board soldiers for the Revolutionary Army. He, with all on board, was captured by the British, and taken to London, Eng., and kept there until peace was declared. They were then sent home. Many had died. Nicholas Gurley lived but three weeks after reaching home, and it was said the prisoners had slow poison, as their symptoms indicated. His wife's name was Betsey. They had three sons and one daughter.

* Mrs. Melissa (Gurley) West says she thinks probably Mr. Alfred Chester Gurley is right regarding the name Benjamin Gurley instead of Nicholas, and should be Capt. Benjamin Gurley.

[The above is as given by Mrs. Melissa (Gurley) West, No. 13, as told her by her father, Nicholas Gurley, No. 2, son of Capt. ——— Gurley.]

Children of Capt. Benjamin Gurley and Betsey _____, his wife, of Marblehead, Mass., afterwards of Keene, Cheshire Co., New Hampshire:

1. THOMAS, born _____.
2. NICHOLAS, " May 2, 1783.
3. BETSEY, " _____.
4. BENJAMIN, " Oct. 26, 1786.

[Note.—Undoubtedly, there will be some who would like to ask the author of this history which of these two statements, in his opinion, is correct. That question is an important question, which I cannot answer only in this way: That after getting all the information possible from both Mrs. Melissa (Gurley) West and Alfred Chester Gurley, I may have some reasons for thinking at this time that perhaps the statements as given me by Alfred Chester Gurley may be the nearest to correct.]

The historian and genealogist, Savage, says there were Gurleys in Boston as far back as 1653, which I am in hopes to know more about some time.

1 and 3.

THOMAS GURLEY, was born at Marblehead, Mass., and went with his parents to Keene, Cheshire Co., New Hampshire. He afterwards went to Ottawa, La Salle Co., Illinois, and at this writing, Jan. 1, 1897, no further reliable information is known of him.

—By Mrs. Melissa (Gurley) West.

BETSEY GURLEY, No. 3, was born at Marblehead, Mass. Went with her parents to Keene, Cheshire Co., New Hampshire. She died of consumption, and from the best information was never married.

—Mrs. Melissa (Gurley) West.

The following by Alfred Chester Gurley:

THOMAS GURLEY, oldest son of Capt. Benjamin Gurley of Marblehead, Mass. Of him but little is known, except, about 1842, he lived in Massachusetts, was married, had one son, Sewell, and believe also a son Robert. No other reliable information is known of him (Jan., 1897).

2.

NICHOLAS GURLEY, of Marblehead, Mass., afterwards of Richland and Sandy Creek, Oswego Co., N. Y., was married to Betsey Scripture Sept. 17, 1807, daughter of Samuel and Betsey (Barrett) Scripture of Keene, Cheshire Co., N. H.

14. LUCY ANN,	" July 6, 1827.
15. RUTH,	" June 3, 1829; died Feb. 18, 1842.

Directly after marriage, Mr. Nicholas Gurley, with his bride, made their home on what is known as the Harmon farm, in the town of Richland, now a part of Sandy Creek, Oswego Co., N. Y.

Buying that farm, he built a log house, wherein they began housekeeping and lived some years. Later, sold out and bought a flouring mill at Sandy Creek, operating that a few years, then selling that and buying the homestead, whereon he remained till death.

Mr. Gurley, while operating his farm, had a contract for carrying the mail from Sackett's Harbor, N. Y., to Oswego, N. Y., a distance of some fifty miles, the mail being carried on horseback; and later he established a stage route over this line, the sons, Reuben and Miland, being old enough to act as drivers.

Mr. Gurley served through the war of 1812 as captain of a company stationed at Sackett's Harbor, N. Y., in consequence of which service Mr. Gurley was given a grant of one hundred and sixty acres of land, and a pension the last years of his life. His death was caused by being thrown from a horse, at the age of sixty-three years. His widow, Mrs. Betsey Gurley, died of paralysis at the advanced age of 95 years 6 months.

BENJAMIN GURLEY, of Waupaca, Waupaca Co., Wis., was married to Clarinda Wilder of Sandy Creek, N. Y., formerly from Vermont.

Benjamin Gurley of Waupaca, Waupaca Co., Wis., was born in the town of Keene, Cheshire Co., New Hampshire, Oct. 26, 1786 (about three months after the death of his father, Capt. Benjamin Gurley), where he spent his early life. He then removed to Sandy Creek, Oswego Co., N. Y., and afterwards removed from there to the town of Boylston, in the same county, where he continued farming. Some time in the fifties he caught the western fever, and removed with his family to Illinois, settling near Woodstock, McHenry Co., where he again engaged in farming, but after a few years decided to go further north, and removed from there to Waupaca, Wis., where he continued farming. He died in the town of Farmington, in the same county. His wife, Clarinda Wilder, was born in the town of Brattleborough, Vt., Nov. 12, 1791.

MILAND GURLEY, of Shelbyville, Mich., formerly of Sandy Creek, N. Y., was married to Sally Frasier of Shaftsbury, Vt., March 1, 1834.

(Mr. and Mrs. West living, Jan., 1897.)

No children.

Mr. Nathan B. West was born May 23, 1816. Mr. and Mrs. West have lived in Allegan more than fifty years, coming there with little of this world's goods while the place, now the county seat, was a very small town.

Mr. West, being a good mechanic and a very industrious man, found, after a few years, that they had accumulated enough to start a shingle mill and sash, blind, and door factory, which business grew to be a very extensive plant, requiring many men in its operation.

In 1892 Mr. West sold his entire interest in the plant, and though they have lost many thousands of dollars through fire (as the plant was burned three times), yet they have an ample sufficiency to meet all their necessities and pleasure in their pleasant home, to establish which they put forth such earnest effort in their early life.

LUCY ANN GURLEY, daughter of Nicholas and Betsey (Scripture) Gurley of Sandy Creek, Oswego Co., N. Y., married William Bliss of Cleveland, O., Dec. 11, 1850.

30. WILLIAM MERIDITH, " Jan. 4, 1894; died Jan. 19, 1894.

Mr. Joseph Gurley was born at Windsor, Bertie Co., North Carolina, March 24, 1868. Left home at the age of twelve years for college, and after finishing his scholastic duties settled in Norfolk, Va., in the year 1885, and was employed as a clerk in the transportation business, and remained as such until the year 1889, when he moved to Hertford Co., N. C., and engaged in the manufacture of shingles and lumber. Having lost his mills in the year 1893 by fire, and having no insurance on them, was unable to rebuild, so returned back to Norfolk, Va., where he has been engaged in the commission business ever since. (1897.)

14.

FRANK GURLEY, of High Point, Guilford Co., N. C., formerly of Windsor, Bertie Co., in the same state, was married to Lillian Holmes, daughter of Rev. J. M. and H. Louisa (Brown) Holmes of Maryland, Sept. 4, 1893.

No children.

Mr. Frank Gurley lived at home with his parents until the death of his father. Soon after his death he accepted a position in Norfolk, Va., where he kept books and attended to other business for a commission house. He soon gave up this position, however, as he did not like to be away from home, consequently returned to Windsor, where a position as clerk was awaiting him in a general store. This position he held until the proprietors agreed to dissolve.

He then accepted a position with another general store, but gave up this position when he became of age, and, after drawing his funds, which were bequeathed to him by his father, he invested it in a general mercantile business with one of his brothers, Thomas P. Gurley, as a partner.

In the fall of 1894 Mr. Gurley, on account of his wife's health, removed to High Point, Guilford Co., in the same state, where, in 1895, he succeeded J. E. Shell in the book and stationery business, and owned the entire business prior to March 1, 1897, when he took as a partner, Rev. N. R. Richardson, who was appointed colportage agent for the Western North Carolina conference of the M. E. Church, south, in Nov. 1896.

[Mr. Frank Gurley was named Francis, but is now known and called Frank.]

12. MARY,	" Mar. 9, 1792; died unmarried.
13. ANNIE,	" about 1795.
14. JAMES,	" Mar. 14, 1800.

In a manuscript pocket-book, still extant, Mr. Jeremiah Gurley speaks of having volunteered and served at three different periods in the Revolutionary Army. After the close of the war he removed to South Carolina, where he lived for ten years, then returned to Johnston Co., N. C., where he remained for a number of years, then removed to Maury Co., Tenn., and finally, in 1817, he settled in Madison Co., Alabama, where he acquired a large tract of land in that section, and lived there the remainder of his life as a successful cotton-planter. His estate was known as "Gurley," and the present village of Gurley in Alabama is on land which was once his plantation.

War records of 1812 and 1862:

CHARLES GURLEY, private; commander, Lynde
Read; period of service, Aug. 15, 1814, to Aug. 25, 1814.

JOHN GURLEY, JR., New London, Conn., enlisted
Aug. 7, 1862; mustered in Aug. 23, 1862; died Nov. 15, 1862.

REMARKS.

In closing this first volume of the "History and Genealogy of the Gurley Family," it may be well enough for the author to make a few remarks in relation to what he finds regarding the name, etc., after years of searching records and inquiries of those living all over the United States.

All the Gurleys, Gourleys, and Gourlays, in Scotland, Ireland, England, and America, all descended from one Ingelram de Gurley, who accompanied "William the Lion" from Normandy, France, to Scotland in the year 1174, and for his sage counsels and good advice to King William he was given a grant of land in Kinraig, Fifeshire, Scotland, which, I believe, is possessed by the name to this day.

All the descendants of this Ingelram de Gurley may feel proud of their name and ancestry, for the name implies bravery, honesty, and a religious character.

I find one who defied (in Scotland) the power of the Pope of Rome — that he had any power over the soul — but for this and the pamphlets he had secretly printed and circulated he had to flee Scotland, and went to England, but the king being a Catholic he soon had to leave England, and went to Canada, where he remained for three years, and then returned to England, where he thrashed a man one day in parliament for his abusive language to him, and for this thrashing he gave this member of parliament he was put in prison; but, nevertheless, he always denied the power of the Pope of Rome to save or condemn the soul of man. This is the only account of any Gurley that I find that was ever arrested on the other side of the Atlantic Ocean, and only one in the U. S., and that an old soldier that was arrested for imbibing too much whisky, and placed in the lockup over night, and fined the next morning.

I find no Gurley in the U. S. at the present time that is either engaged in the manufacture or the sale of any intoxicating drink of any kind, and but very few that use it in any form.

And, for one, I am proud of the name Gurley, and believe all should be. I have made special inquiry in relation to temperance, character, and religious qualifications relative to our name, and the same applies to the name Gourley and Gourlay.

A. E. GURLEY.
